BLAST KILLS 13 MINERS

REPORT 152 ESCAPED DEATH; GAS BLAMED FOR MINE EXPLOSION

Majority Of Day-Shift Workers Were Leaving Shaft When Blast Occurred; Bodies Are Recovered

COALPORT, Pa., Aug. 16.—With thirteen miners killed in a gas explosion at the Number 3 Mine of the Irvona Coal and Coke Company at Blain City, near here late yesterday, federal and state mine bureau officials today examined the blast torn workings where 152 other men narrowly escaped with their lives.

After a checkup today, company officials said that 165 men had gone down with the day shift. Of this number, most of the men were well on their way out before the blast let go. George McCae, of Pittsburgh, representing the Federal Mines Bureau and Ira H. Thomas, deputy state inspector of mines, were at the scene of the blast today. Of the fourteen men who were at work nearly three miles from the mine mouth when the blast let go, only one, Mareno Cocca, 37, escaped the full force of the explosion and came out alive.

MISSING AMERICAN COLLEGIANS FOUND SAFE NEAR ARCTIC

Canadian Mounted Policeman Locates Four Youths

REGINA, Sask., Aug. 16.—With hope rapidly waning that they would ever be found again, the four American college youths who set out in two canoes to reach the Arctic Circle, today were reported safe in the wilderness south of Fort Churchill.

Word of their safety was brought back to civilization by Corporal J. J. Malloy, R. C. M. P., stationed at Pelican Narrows. The news came after four weeks anxious waiting.

A radio message had been sent to Malloy sometime ago ordering the "mounties" to proceed north and bring the party back. Malloy had not received the message, but he accidentally came across the group of young men.

The party has changed its plans and are now using a route to reach Fort Churchill that will keep them fairly well in touch with other men in the wilderness. They have also been equipped with fresh supplies and rifles.

The group is composed of John Fuller, 21, of Keokuk, Ia.; Max J. Kane, 19, of Iowa City; Gordon Armstrong, 20, Lake Iowa, and Peddar C. Bodum, 24, of Crystal, Ia. All are college men.

The group left Iowa City May 29, with the avowed intention of going to Chesterfield inlet.

RE-OPEN MINES

BROWN PROBES LOCHER VOTE

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 16.—An investigation of a report that U. S. Sen. Cyrus Locher, Cleveland, dry, may have defeated Attorney Graham Hunt, Cincinnati, liberal, candidate for the short term Democratic nomination for U. S. senator, was launched here this afternoon by Secretary of State Brown.

An unofficial report received at the secretary of state's office this afternoon said that the Cuyahoga County election board had discovered a mistake of 10,000 votes favoring Locher.

PASSENGERS MAROONED ON GROUNDED STEAMER

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 16.—Approximately 100 passengers of the Pacific mail steamer, Ecuador, aground on the rocks of Cape San Lazaro, Lower California, were awaiting rescue by the fruit ship San Mateo as dawn broke over the Pacific this morning.

There was no immediate danger, Captain T. K. Oaks, of the Ecuador, reported by radio. The San Mateo, northbound, is about 100 miles south of the stranded steamer.

The ship, about 10,000 tons dead weight, was resting easily in the fairly calm sea and expected to hold out until rescue was effected.

The Ecuador was bound from San Francisco to New York and carried first class and steerage passengers.

The four men aboard the plane were Robert H. Fatt, pilot; Angel Alfonso, mechanic; Luther Ritz, radio expert who was trying out a wireless telephone installed on the plane this week and C. Norman Ageton, of Flushing, N. Y.

According to a radio message relayed from the tanker to the naval radio station here by the coast guard cutter Sauke, all of the plane's personnel were saved. However, a later message, received early today at the coast guard station at St. Petersburg, stated that Ageton had been killed.

The plane took off from Havana at four o'clock yesterday afternoon. When it failed to arrive here an hour later, a sister ship was sent to search for the missing plane. Then at seven o'clock a wireless message from General Machado reported that the plane was circling over a tanker but was being buffeted severely by a forty-five mile gale which had swept it off its course. Heavy seas were running.

Shortly after eight o'clock, the Legionnaire picked up the crew of the General Machado and the plane was salvaged. The tanker is bound for Tampa from Port Arthur, Texas, with a cargo of oil.

When the plane left Havana light winds were reported. The gale came from the gulf of Mexico without warning.

The plane was a tri-Pokker land plane.

HOOVER WILL START DRIVE FOR "SILENT VOTE" IN CAMPAIGN

Anticipates Warm Fight To Open Capital Office

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., Aug. 16.—Convinced that he can be elected to the presidency only by winning the independents to his cause, Herbert Hoover will start east tonight to wage a campaign for the so-called "silent vote" of the country.

The Republican nominee will strive to capture the support of women's organizations, the organized forces of social reform, and the business element, which frequently ignores elections. He will seek to arouse the interest of that large class of Americans, who take their politics lightly and who go to the ballot box but seldom.

If he can get them to the polls and persuade them to vote Republican, Hoover feels assured of the election.

The Republican candidate indicated the strategy of his campaign in his acceptance speech, when he devoted large portions of his address to the subjects of social reform and child welfare. He made a special plea, in fact, to the women of the country, urging them to take an interest in politics generally and in the presidential election especially.

Hoover declared the problems of America were "moral and spiritual" to a "much greater degree" than economic. Hoover added: "The participation of women in politics means a keener realization of the importance of these questions it means higher political standards."

Hoover has discounted all reports of his followers that he will win in a walk. He rather has heeded the advice of those lieutenants who tell him he must wage a hard battle to win the election. Consequently, he has determined to take the campaign seriously and to use all the executive ability, for which he is famous, in conducting his own campaign.

Hoover will get on the campaign trail by making "three or four" key speeches, at strategic points in eastern and border line states.

The Republican organization probably will force him to make a dozen all told although he personally would prefer to rest his campaign upon the lesser number of addresses. But regardless of the number of speeches, that it is making a 100 per cent effort to get out the independent vote.

The nominee at present plans an "office campaign." He will open offices in a private home near his own at 2300 S. Street, in the fashionable "northwest" residential section of the capital. It has been rumored that Mrs. Hoover declined to let her home be turned into an office not even for a presidential candidate so Hoover was forced to arrange for offices in a neighbor's home. From this headquarters, he will conduct his campaign, making a small number of trips for his speeches at strategic points during the heat of the campaign.

Reported Race For Lieutenant Governor Still In Doubt

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 16.—A tabulation of the complete unofficial returns at Secretary of State Brown's office this afternoon gave Myers Y. Cooper, Cincinnati, a lead of 5,388 votes over Begg. The vote now stands: Cooper, 259,783; Begg, 254,295.

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 16.—That Myers Y. Cooper, Cincinnati, has been selected as the Republican nominee for governor of Ohio was indicated early today by complete unofficial returns from Tuesday's statewide primary election.

The contest for the G. O. P. nomination for lieutenant governor, full term, appeared to be in doubt. With 381 precincts missing, State Representative John T. Brown, Mechanicsburg, was leading George C. Braden, Warren, by 595 votes, according to unofficial returns. Braden was nominated for the short term as lieutenant governor.

Officials at Cooper headquarters here stated that, according to reports made to them, Cooper had a lead of 5,568 over Congressman James T. Begg, Sandusky. Complete unofficial returns, it was stated, gave Cooper 259,725 votes while Begg received 254,157.

"From information which I regard as reliable, it appears I have been nominated for governor on the Republican ticket," declared Myers Y. Cooper, in a statement issued early today.

"It is a source of great gratification to me to know that this expression of confidence on the part of the Republican voters came from so many sections of Ohio," Cooper continued. "Being mindful of the great responsibility which

REPUBLICAN STATE NEW YORK CHAIRMAN REMOVED SUDDENLY

Death Throws Party In Confusion In Candidate's State

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Republican campaign plans for the state of New York were upset, at least temporarily, today as a result of the sudden and unexpected death of George K. Morris, the aggressive chairman of the Republican state central committee, who had already assumed the major role in the party's great attempt to defeat Governor Al Smith in his own state.

Because the major plans of the campaign in the Empire State had already been worked out in a series of conferences between state leaders, and because Morris had himself had a large part in shaping these plans, it is inevitable, in the opinion of some of the important Republican leaders here, that the re-organization and launching of the vital New York campaign must suffer a set-back of at least two weeks—and it may be as much as a full month—because of this fatal intervention of death.

At least ten days will be required for the routine of assembling the state committee to elect a successor. Two weeks more probably will be required for the reassignment of the campaign bureaus and the necessary revision of strategy to accommodate the offensive to the new personalities.

Miss Sarah Schuyler Butler, daughter of President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia University and vice-chairman of the Republican state committee hurried to New York today from her summer home in Southampton, L. I., to assume nominal direction of the state headquarters. The emergency places a woman at the head of the great G. O. P. machine in New York for the first time in history.

Morris, who had been state chairman continuously since 1922, when he was selected for the job by former Nathan L. Miller, was struck down by a cerebral hemorrhage. Two hours after he had been seized by a fainting spell at the Metropolitan Club, where he was breakfasting with National Committee chairman Charles D. Hilles, he died in his hotel room—before specialists summoned by the house physician could arrive. He was a widower, his wife having died in 1920.

William A. Hill, of Binghamton, Hoover pre-convention manager, who like Morris, is an avowed director of the state headquarters, is mentioned as a likely successor to the state chairmanship.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—The sudden death of George K. Morris, chairman of the Republican state committee, elevates Miss Sarah Schuyler Butler, daughter of Nicholas Murray Butler, to the state chairmanship of the party.

With Mrs. Cornelius O'Day, chairman of the Democratic state committee by virtue of the resignation of Lieutenant Governor Corning, women for the first time in history head the state committees of the two parties. Both Miss Butler and Mrs. O'Day had been vice-chairmen of their committees.

The body of Mr. Morris, who died of apoplexy in his suite at the Frake Hotel, will be taken tomorrow to Amsterdam, N. Y., for burial.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow in the chapel of the National Casket Company. The body will be interred in the family plot at Amsterdam.

The grotto, an adjoining building, was also damaged. Fire departments responded to calls for aid and after an hour's battle brought the flames under control. Cause of the blaze has not been determined.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Aug. 16.—Two boys were burned to death when fire destroyed the Casino at Harvey's Lake, a summer resort, near here early today.

Myers Y. Cooper, Cincinnati, has apparently won his second nomination for governor from the Republican party. He is leading Congressman James T. Begg, Sandusky, by more than 5,000 votes in the complete unofficial count.

FORGERIES TRACED TO MASTER CROOK

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Directed by a single master mind, a nationwide gang of forgers has mulcted banks in the United States of $10,000,000 in the past twelve months. It was asserted today by Hugh D. Combs, general superintendent of claims of the Fidelity and Guaranty Company.

His detectives are trying to trap the master forger and smash the highly centralized racket. Combs said he believed the $96,000,000 hezzelment charged to Cornelius Callahan, formerly a secretary of the Bactaly Corporation; $106,000 forgeries at the Manufacturers' Trust Company; the $200,000 peculations laid to the Donahue gang and another $500,000 job here were work of the gang.

He professed to know nothing of reports from Toledo that New York early Burns detectives are hunting a trunk said to hold $500,000 securities alleged stolen here by the Moe Rashkin gang. Rashkin and several others are jailed in Detroit.

SAY MARY GARDEN NOW BETROTHED

She made her operatic debut in Paris in 1900, and her American debut in New York in 1907. She was for several years a member of the Chicago Grand Opera Company and now makes her home in Monaco.

INVESTIGATION TO LEARN TRUTH ABOUT OLD MURDER STARTS

Probe Statements Of Man Awaiting Execution

TOLEDO, O., Aug. 16.—Investigation to determine whether Chas. (Stanley) Hoppe, 26, condemned slayer of Dorothy Sielagowski, 7, was the murderer of Lily Dale Crov, Toledo, a crime which he has confessed and denied at intervals will be made by the state it was learned here today.

Hoppe is now awaiting execution October 26. He is lodged in death row at the Ohio penitentiary, having been received at the institution yesterday.

The condemned man is said to have again denied his guilt of the Crov murder as he was being taken to Columbus, after having produced a fountain pen which was said to have been the property of Miss Crov, as proof of his guilt following a confession of the crime.

Detective John Hovey of the Toledo police department, is expected to interview Hoppe in the penitentiary in connection with the new probe into the Crov crime. Detective Hovey is confident that he can determine if Hoppe actually committed the crime by asking him a few questions.

The petition in error which Hoppe's attorneys were said to be preparing in asking for a new trial has not been filed, although a bill of exceptions containing 918 pages of typewritten manuscript was filed yesterday with the clerk of courts.

LANDSLIDES HALT RAILWAY SERVICE

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Aug. 16.—All train service on the Southern Railway between Asheville, Salisbury and Spartanburg was stopped today due to landslides and washouts caused by torrential rains in this section during the past few days.

The French, Broad and Swannanoa Rivers were rising at the rate of one foot an hour and were reported to be out of their banks at several points. Numbers of families have been driven from their homes in the lowlands as a result of the flood. Authorities are warning people who live along the rivers to abandon their homes.

A landslide between Old Fort and Ridge Crest covered the railway tracks and halted traffic. Southern Railway officials said it probably would be twenty-four hours before a train could be moved on the line between Asheville and Salisbury, but they hoped to have the line open to Spartanburg late today.

No lives have been lost.

OHIO'S FRUIT CROP BETTER THAN 1927

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 16.—Ohio fruit crop this year will be slightly above that of last year, according to the August report of the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station issued here today. The same report of conditions holds good over the entire United States, the statement indicated.

Although apples declined slightly in Ohio during July the present outlook is for 5,880,000 bushels against 5,600,000 bushels in 1927, the statement declared. The commercial apple crop of the state is estimated at 549,000 barrels as compared with 541,000 barrels last season.

The peach crop is reported as 1,753,000 bushels against 1,326,000 bushels in 1927. Ohio's grape crop is expected to amount to 28,700 tons while last year its production was 20,000 tons.

It would be effective if there were any truth in it, but there is to be no change here. "There is no movement afoot in Washington to transfer me. I am not to be promoted, transferred nor will I resign."

THREE HARNESS RACE DRIVERS HURT IN UPSET; COX SUSPENDED

CLEVELAND, Aug. 16.—Three harness racing drivers were in St. Alexis Hospital today following a bad spill in the $11,000 champion stake at North Randall stalling stake at North Randall late yesterday. Officials said it was the worst wreck in the last twenty-five years of harness racing and the worst in history at North Randall.

The collision occurred as the closely packed field thundered into the back stretch. A half dozen horses were thrown to the ground, sulkeys wrecked, and injured drivers either thrown clear or endangered by the hoofs of the rearing, frightened horses, while screams from the crowd of 15,000 in the stands added to the bedlam.

Walter Cox, a veteran circuit driver, was charged with responsibility and barred from racing for one month. Cox was driving Fireglo, greatest two-year-old of the 1927 season and is alleged to have gone into a cluster of sulkeys, while attempting to take the lead, upsetting Guy Abbey, one of the horses and Dick McMahon, his driver. Fireglo went on to win, but was disqualified.

Tom Berry suffered a broken right leg. McMahon a broken collar bone, and Alonzo McDonald a broken right foot, scalp lacerations and sprained shoulder. Several of the horses were knocked breathless and could not rise from the track for some time, but were otherwise uninjured. Marvin Childs, another driver, was unconscious for twenty minutes but was not believed seriously hurt.

Your physician will tell you that lowered vitality is the result of an insufficient supply of red blood cells—those vitalizing elements in the blood that nourish and sustain the body.

When you get your red blood cells back up to normal, that sluggish, let-down feeling, loss of appetite, rheumatism, boils, pimples, and skin troubles disappear. You get hungry again; sleep soundly; solid flesh takes the place of that which was once flabby. You feel strong; and your nerves become steady.

I live, on the outskirts of New York. It is almost impossible to leave the windows open in the summer time, on account of the inventions. There are inventions that blow forth seven kinds of jazz and the elegant mispronunciations of announcers. There are inventions that go roaring past on wheels, and there are inventions that go flying through the air overhead, hitting tremendously on all twelve. There is an invention in my study that rings and rings, and when I speak into it it says, "What number? Scuse it, please!" Yes, I'm all for progress, but sometimes I am bowed down by the tumult of the inventions. This is one of the times. So please write me in detail about anything else.

XENIANS USED MOST WATER ON TUESDAY

Water consumption during the last week in Xenia has averaged a million gallons daily, establishing a high record for the summer, officials of the municipal waterworks plant announced Thursday.

The peak was reached last Tuesday when 1,075,000 gallons of water were pumped. The million mark was touched last Monday and total consumption Wednesday was announced as 1,045,000 gallons.

The increased consumption is attributed to the intense heat, the lack of rain and the fact citizens are using a large volume of water for sprinkling lawns.

Castoria is a comfort when Baby is fretful. No sooner taken than the little one is at ease. If restless, a few drops soon bring contentment. No harm done, for Castoria is a baby remedy, meant for babies. Perfectly safe to give the youngest infant; you have the doctors' word for that! It is a vegetable product and you could use it every day. But it's in an emergency that Castoria means most. Some night when constipation must be relieved—or colic pains—or other suffering. Never be without it; some mothers keep an extra bottle, unopened, to make sure there will always be Castoria in the house. It is effective for older children, too; read the book that comes with it.

If my inventive readers will pardon the heretical opinion, I believe that this civilization of ours is cursed with inventions. Out where

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THE CURE OF SOULS—He that covereth his sins shall not prosper; but whose confesseth and forsaketh them shall have mercy.—Prov. 28:13.

MAKING AND LOSING MILLIONS

No more than five out of every 100 persons who speculate in stock market have any chance of quitting with a profit!

This is not a casual estimate, but a calculation carefully arrived at through a study of brokers' records by Fred C. Kelly, financial writer, who analyzes the current record-breaking market operations.

Of the estimated 12,000,000 Americans, most of them newcomers to speculation, who are "playing the market," 5 per cent of winners is made up almost entirely of hardened, experienced speculators who have plentiful capital, Mr. Kelly finds. The number of uninitiated outsiders who have made money at the end of a month or a year of market dabbling is almost infinitesimal.

But a handful of outsiders do tumble into easy money, and it is the tales of their quickly won wealth, rather than the recital of the millions of failures, that draw new moths to the stock market flame.

"I know a hard-working stenographer who learned the market by noting the methods and operations of her employer," writes Mr. Kelly. "For three years she made her own clothes, went without vacations or minor luxuries to save what she needed to start a little speculative account. And you can believe it or not, she has won and kept nearly $200,000." But she is the one success in 1,000 cases.

Of the failures the investigator encountered, one man lost his life savings of $8,000, a woman lost all she had, $900 with which she had planned a trip home; an experienced operator saw his capital reduced from $75,000 to $3,000 within a trading week.

To test the value of the tips on which most inexperienced speculators do their buying, Mr. Kelly played the market "on paper" for several months, losing heavily, "on paper" of course. It might be a good plan for others to try this scheme first.

A LEARNED DECISION

A Florida judge has decided that a married man is entitled to a night off, once in a while, and incidentally he decreed that a man had a right to slap his wife, not too hard, of course, if her objections to the night off took the form of violence toward the family property.

It seems that the defendant wanted to go out with the boys on one particular night. Wife objected and thereby hangs a tale and the learned judge's decision.

Hubby went out, despite the objections raised, and then the wife went out and broke the windshield on the family flivver. That is what brought on the trouble and the case in court for in righteous indignation the husband bashed the face of the partner of his joys.

All right. Into court he went with a charge of wife beating hanging over him. Wife, when the test came and her husband faced a jail sentence, weakened and said: "He only slapped me a little."

And then the judge set it all right by saying that the man could go out occasionally, if he wanted to, that he might slap his wife a little if necessity arose and then discharged the defendant.

Thus has the wave of femininity that has threatened to engulf man, been swept back. Just about like Mrs. Partington swept back the Atlantic ocean with her broom.

PENALTIES OF PROSPERITY

France hears that the United States spends $9,000,000 a year to discover the secret of the "death ray" invented by French scientists in 1917. The inventors are said to be penniless, because the French government would not give them sufficient financial backing. French scientists are angry and like Uncle Sam even less than before. Free spending arouses jealousy. Prosperity has its penalties. If you want to be popular, be poor.

ROAD VISION

Early motorists can remember the days when black-topped New York state roads were a joy to middle westerners used to riding on dirt and in ruts. New York was one of the pioneer states with its smooth, macadam highways. Today those roads are too narrow and their foundation is insufficient for the truck traffic. New York is pioneering again in wide, concrete and brick roads with several traffic lanes. Roads of the future in this country will be much wider, and trucks will have roads of their own.

STOPPING THE SHOW

Not long ago an actor read a chapter from the Bible in a famous New York night club. Half the people in the room were drunk or on the way. The actor stilled the tumult with his voice and the verses. There was strange attention. When he finished there was silence—impressive silence—for some seconds. And then everybody went on with the show. That's a scene that's lived a hundred times in life. Something "gets to us." We are brought to attention. We are impressed. As a rule we do nothing about it. We do not set out to improve our habits. We go on with the show.

THE RAINY DAY

Fifteen years ago a Philadelphia man inherited a quarter of million dollars. At the same time he was told by his doctor that he had not more than a year to live. He weighed 545 pounds. He set out to spend his $250,000 before death took away all his wants. He lived 15 years, dying just the other day. As was to be expected, he died poor poverty after having been a rubber in a Turkish bath and a taxi start. When we are laying down a policy for the future we do well to assume that the future is going to be a long one. The rainy day may come tomorrow or it may come 15 years hence. And it may rain for years.

New Yorker

By CLARK KINNAIRD

NEW YORK. — Notes on the day's doings of a New Yorker:

To the office by subway, and as I swayed upon a strap in the jammed car, I thought it miraculous that New York is not ravaged frequently by epidemic and plague because of conditions in the subways.

Most of the morning answering letters from readers, and there would be more pleasure in this daily task if so many persons didn't ask the same questions.

To Sand's Point for lunch, and Arthur Brisbane there, and Charles MacArthur, the playwright, and Neysa McMein, the cover-artist, and members of the Argentine polo team, and many others. And I attracted attention to myself, by noisily upsetting my water glass upon the table. The hostess did not, as some books of etiquette prescribe, relieve my embarrassment by upsetting her own glass. And it is just as well that she didn't adhere to such a convention, for a moment later, in the library, one of the Argentine polo players upset his coffee cup upon his lap.

Brisbane gave me a lift to the station, in the dictograph-equipped limousine in which he produces many of his editorials that made him the most widely read editorialist in the world. And he told how when he lunched with Coolidge, the president said, "Mr. Brisbane, you wrote a paragraph for the Washington Herald and clippings of it were sent to me from all over the United States. That newspaper must have a huge circulation."

Like Coolidge, many persons do not know that Brisbane's editorials appear in more than 1,000 newspapers, and that he is paid $200,000 a year for writing them.

And I asked Brisbane some important questions which he answered with more courtesy than I deserved. When I asked him, "What do you think of the new biography of Mr. Hearst by John K. Winkler?" he replied, "I've read only the parts that apply to myself, and these portions are full of inaccuracies." I told him that thousands of newspapermen like myself hoped he would write his memoirs, and he confided that he hoped to do a book about some of the interesting persons he has known in his famous life.

Back to the office, where Henry Edward Warner, of Baltimore, of campaigners for reform in men's dress, came to see me; and he admitted that his wife wouldn't allow him to be as free in his dress as he would like to be. "All married men," he said, "are cowards." He related how when he appeared in a dining-room minus a coat, the head-waiter requested him to leave and obtain one, but this he refused to do until the women present put on coats. The waiter suggested that it was according to the wishes of women guests that men were requested to wear coats. So Warner thereupon conducted a poll of the women in the dining room and found that not one cared whether men wore coats or not, and most wanted him to be comfortable. Here's luck to Warner's campaign!

In the evening came Frank (Bill) McLean, the correspondent, who claims distinction as the only man who never honeymooned at Niagara Falls or wanted to. (It's his old home town, and he's a confirmed bachelor.) We went to the Chinese Theatre on the Bowery and two hours of a five-hour play that I could say more about if this newspaper had Chinese characters on its typesetting machines. When it dulled upon us, we took a taxi to Brooklyn Bridge, and walked across it, enjoying what is to me one of New York's most glorious nocturnal sights. And so by subway to home and to bed to read myself asleep.

By FRED C. KELLY

Back in my home town, where real estate was comparatively cheap, and show window space cost little, Horace Zell, who had a general store, used to crowd hundreds of articles into one small window.

I've known him to exhibit lawn mowers, shoes, canned goods, neckwear, goldfish and manure sets all heaped in together.

But, on Fifth Avenue, where show window space is worth a fortune, I recently saw a large window containing nothing but one striped shirt and a pair of socks.

I'm hoping now that some enterprising storekeeper will some day decorate his most spacious window to the display of a single little bone collar button.

GO TO COURT TO WIN SLEEP

NEW YORK.—Even people who live on Broadway have to sleep.

A cabaret opened on top of a Broadway hotel. It promptly proceeded to make night into day, to the accompaniment of a whining saxophone and the clatter of dishes and silver.

Folks on the street below hearing the music, went up to the roof and became patrons. Everything was well until—

The apartment house next door brought suit, backed by the 100 families which tenanted it. Damages of $50,000 was asked. The folks next door wanted their sleep and have gone to court to get it.

And if the Frenchman who said he didn't see anything in America except hotels had lowered his eyes a bit he might have noticed a filling station brightening a corner here and there.—Macon Telegraph.

WHAT ARE THE WILD WAVES SAYING?

How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

"By Their Hands Shall You Know Them"

Hands are a very important part of beauty—so important, in fact that we find not infrequently, that a woman is judged by what her hands tell about her. There is far more to the study of hands than the average person realizes.

Aside from structure there is gesture, firmness and softness, or that feminine perfection which is a perfect blend of all. There are fingers and nails, texture and contour, and upon the whole, hand beauty depends.

American women have not yet developed that charming absence of self-consciousness which characterizes the French. Gestures of movement, significant and secure. And yet—we should cultivate it, for as Balzac says, "Man speaks with three tongues. We acquire the faculty of imposing silence upon our lips, upon our eyes, upon our eyebrows and upon our foreheads; the hand alone does not dissemble—no feature is more expressive than the hand."

It is so—there is no question about it, and because it is, we must learn the grace and ease of movement which is so perfect that it seems to emanate from our feelings and become involuntary, dictated by the emotion of the inner self.

However, do not overdo the gestures, for they lie not only in movement, but in repose, and I must emphasize here the fact that many women are serious offenders in a far too frequent hand motion.

Passing your hair, pulling at some part of your face or your gown is to indulge in a habit that correct etiquette frowns upon, and to which character analysts attribute only negative qualities. Try to remember to keep your hands away from your face. Once you have completed your toilette in the privacy of your own boudoir, you return to it. So much for the good manners of hand control.

Now for the exterior of these two important appendages of ours. Your hands—your texture and color—are only second in importance to your face. And while they are not so susceptible to wrinkles and blemishes and other such imperfections, there are, nevertheless, certain things we must guard against. The first and most common are chapping, redness and roughness. Extremes of temperature may cause this. The splashing of hands first in hot and then in cold water may do it. Improper drying is another factor.

Exposure to inclement weather is another cause of unlovely hands. But of all these, there is not one which cannot be guarded against. There are two places where the average woman should keep her hands prepared. The first is on the bathroom shelf. The second is in a convenient place in your kitchen. A nice little enamel cabinet, ideal for this purpose.

I truly believe that if every woman would have one of these little metal cabinets exactly the size and shape which is used for a man's shaving cabinet, we would have a great many more beautiful women in the world. You know, yourself, how easy it is to remember to do a thing if a reminder is hung right in front of you and intrudes on your consciousness a dozen times a day.

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS M. D.
Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet For Children"

WHITE BREAD'S GOOD, BUT WHOLE WHEAT'S BETTER

"Our state nutrition specialist urged us to eat more whole grain bread and cereals. But now comes a woman demonstrator who tells a class of about 35 of our women that white bread is more nutritious than whole wheat. I am president of the Home Economic club in my town and would like the truth to present to my club."

"Mrs. F."

The demonstrator of any product would naturally be instructed to make statements that would favor the selling of that product. Mrs. F. in this case, one has taken a very small part of the truth and presented it as the whole truth.

The part of truth this demonstrator has taken is that of equal weights of bread made of white flour and whole grain flour, as there is some residue left in the whole grain which is not digested. Therefore, there would be a small amount more of energy of caloric value obtained from the white flour. From this the demonstrator has evidently reasoned that the white flour is more nutritious. But the word nutritious implies a great deal more than simply the energy value of food. There are the vitamin, mineral element and the protein or building qualities to consider; also the anti-constipating effects.

The whole grain breads contain practically twice as much of the mineral elements and vitamins than do the white breads, and the protein is of much superior quality. The fact that the bran is not wholly digested is a point in its favor, because it helps combat the ordinary constipation.

The following is what McCollum has to say in his Newer Knowledge of Nutrition:

"Patent flour is one of the most deficient foods which enters into the human diet, being exceeded in this respect only by isolated foods such as starch, sugars, fats or polished rice. Bolted flour is rather poor in protein quality. It is very deficient in calcium, phosphorus, sodium, chlorine, iron and possibly also in potassium. Bolted flour is also very deficient in the anti-neuritic substance (water-soluble B) as shown by the frequent occurrence of beri-beri among the people of Labrador and Newfoundland, where bread from this source is a principal article of food. It is exceedingly poor in fat-soluble A, and in the organic factor playing a role in the prevention of rickets. From the standpoint of human nutrition it is important, also, that it lacks entirely the anti-scorbutic substance."

So, on the different counts of nutrition, you can see that whole wheat bread is by far more nutritious than white bread.

At Professor Heron's School

"How many birds are you related to, anyhow, Billy Boat-Bill?" cried I. "Did I just hear you say that Stork was your cousin?" He doesn't live around here, does he? It seems to me that in my youth I was told that he lived in "the old country" wherever that may be—not in these parts, I am sure.

"Whoever told you that was quite right," declared Billy Boat-Bill. "When I went to the Heron's school—"

"Who interrupted him?"

"Where was that?" asked she. "Over in the marshes by the side of an old willow tree that had toppled into the water," replied Billy Boat-Bill. "My what great times we youngsters did have! I remember them well. There was a nest of water-hens hidden in the trunk, but we found them and ate a nestling every recess until they were all gone. Our teacher was kind but firm. We had to mind Professor Heron, I can tell you. Teacher was no Night Watchman, but a Common Heron, you know! Well, as I was saying, one of the things that I learned at school was about Cousin Stork. Perhaps I can remember the lesson so well because he is related to me. At any rate Stork's real home is in Africa, but he really likes Europe much better, and so every year he and his wife fly to Holland, or to some part of the lowlands where there is lots of water, plenty of frogs and few guns, and hatch and bring up their family."

"If they don't like guns they must have had a terrible time of it these last few years," remarked wife. "I heard that over in Europe the humans had a dreadful war."

"Yes, that is all true," replied Billy Boat-Bill, sadly. "And you know, I can tell you."

"We had to mind Professor Heron, I can tell you."

"We had no idea how many storks lost their lives. You see they are very fond of Humans and like to build their nests in house chimneys, and church steeples. But these were destroyed by the great 'Bangstorks' and, of course when they fell the nests of the Storks, with the tiny babies in them, came crashing down, too, and the little ones were dashed to pieces. The Storks love the humans so well that they were astonished and grieved to think their friends would fight among themselves. They could not understand it. But now the war is over and they will go on destroying frogs and snakes as usual in peace!"

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—A week of association with Alfred E. Smith's political organization in New York after about a month of association with Herbert Hoover's political organization here in Washington, leads me to the inevitable conclusion that nothing is quite so hopeless as politics.

There is little, if anything, to choose between the two outfits. In fact, they are hard to tell apart, even to look at. They are still harder to tell apart, to listen to. There is nothing about either of them to put your finger down on and say: "This is real. This is getting." This actually means something.

One is as intangible at the other—as intangible as an ectoplasm—you are doubtful if there is any such thing.

We all, I take it, are agreed that the two major parties have long ceased, either one of them, to signify anything except that they sport different emblems. Their platforms are equally meaningless.

There does, however, appear to be a difference between their respective candidates. They certainly are contrasting personalities and mentalities—yes, and moralities—considered as individuals.

Some people say: "Al Smith is the issue in this campaign."

I do not see why they cannot say, with just as much force: "Herbert Hoover is the issue."

Yes, indeed, Hoover and Smith are an issue apiece, provided their managers will permit them to be issues.

The difference between the pair, however, is precisely what their managers are trying to sweat out of them, respectively. Smith's management is doing its best to tone him down. Hoover's management is trying to pep him up considerably. The Smithites want to make their man appear "safer." The Hooverites want to make theirs more "popular."

If their committees have their way, Alfred E. Smith and Herbert Hoover will be as much alike, by next November, as their parties and their platforms.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

Is "All Fair in Love" or Should Fair Play Rule?

What is the truth about the old saying that has been used from time immemorial to excuse unfair methods of love making—"all's fair in love and war?" Poison gas, bombing of non-combatants, firing on hospital ships have all been excused on the grounds of "all being fair in war." Should the methods be allowed in love? To my mind, never. Wins, though it may seem to. The deceiver lives in constant fear of being found out, and after that no one has faith in him. Life is often difficult to the best people, but a guilty conscience never helped one over the hard places, believe me.

That is the answer I would give to Troubled, who has been going with a boy and discovered that he is the boy friend of her best girl friend. He has not been very true to his girl, as he called her. Troubled, as he has been attentive to you, but I think you should find out how the girl feels about him. Imagine how you would feel if you were in her place.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am 18 and have known my boy friend four years. I am wondering if it would hurt my reputation to let him put his arm around me in public. My mother thinks this is very nice, but if she knew that I let him kiss me she would deny me the privilege of going out with him. Does it hurt to let this boy kiss me although I have only been out with him twice?"

"BETTY LOU."

Allowing endearments in public is considered bad taste, Betty Lou, because it makes you conspicuous. Now put yourself into your mother's place. Would you care to have your daughter hugged and kissed by any boy she went out with, even if she did know him pretty well? Doesn't it make a girl seem a bit cheap to submit to such things? Will you expect the next boy you go with to do likewise? And how will you feel when HE comes along? If you love a chap and he loves you, even if later you fall out of love, of course there is some excuse, but do not indulge in promiscuous "petting," I beg of you.

The boy will probably ask for an introduction if he wants one. Anxious Bobby, but it would do no harm to suggest to one of the boys that he bring him up and make you known to one another.

TOO MUCH!

The Spatts had been at it again.

"And furthermore," said Mrs. Concluding her long tirade, "you certainly aren't much of a husband."

"Well, my dear," Mr. retorted, wearily, "I can truthfully say that you are a lot of wife."

Stuffed Steaks—One and a half pounds of steak, sliced thin, two ounces of salt pork, one egg, one teaspoon salt, three-fourths teaspoon celery salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, one-eighth spoon poultry seasoning. (This may be omitted), one-half scrap onion, two tablespoons lemon juice, one cup bread crumbs, one and a half cups of boiling water. Wash the steak and cut into five or six pieces, cutting the fat from it, and making the pieces as nearly square as possible.

Use the remainder of the ingredients, except the water, for the stuffing. Put the salt pork through the food grinder. Beat the egg and add it to the pork. Then add the remainder of the ingredients.

Divide the dressing into as many parts as there are pieces of steak. Put a portion of the stuffing on each piece of steak and roll. String may be used around the steak in order to keep it in place. Roll each piece of steak in flour, and brown them in a frying pan, with the fat cut from the steak, to which has been added a quantity of butter. After they have browned, add two tablespoons more of flour to the fat in the bottom of the frying pan so as to thicken the gravy when the steaks are done. Then sprinkle salt over the steaks and pour one and one-half cups of boiling water; cook them three hours. Bake for one and one-half hours. Serve with cream peas over the top.

CENTRAL HIGH WINS FROM ST. BRIGID RALLY THREATENS

Central High School barely succeeded in defeating St. Brigid High School by the closest possible margin of 5 to 4 in a National League softball game Wednesday night at Cox Memorial Athletic Field.

Central acquired a five-run advantage in the early innings. St. Brigid, after being held scoreless for seven rounds, came to life in the eighth and threatened with a four-run rally. St. Brigid again filled the bases in the ninth but could not score.

Both teams fielded brilliantly, a factor which kept the score down. St. Brigid bunched its hits better than usual and gave its best exhibition of the season.

Eddie Higgins pitched for the winners and had the opposition eating out of his hand most of the way, using nothing more than a slow ball. Phil Campbell hurled a good game for St. Brigid.

The Downtown Country Club hosts the Fremont Thursday night. Defeat for the former team would mean elimination from the race for the league championship.

St. Brigid lineup: Hibbert, c.; Powers, 1b; Campbell, p.; Combs, 2b; Ernst, ss; R. Shoup, 3b; Donovan, rf; Kennedy, lf; Killeen, cf.

Central lineup: Tull, c.; Higgins, p.; Clemans, 1b; Hurley, 2b; Doak, ss; Smittle, 3b; Bell, lf; Gibney, rf.

BOLD ROBBERS GET VALUABLE LINENS

KEENE, N. H., Aug. 16.—The countryside for miles around today was scoured for a trio of robbers who, at pistol point, held up S. E. Kaleb, wealthy Syracuse, N. Y. importer, as he was driving in his automobile in the town of Dublin and robbed him of $25,000 worth of imported linens.

FELT MISERABLE ALL OVER BEFORE TAKING KONJOLA

Local Man Says New Medicine Built Up His Run-down System.

Twenty-two different roots and herbs combined with other recognized medical ingredients, go into the making of this new Konjola medicine. Sufferers from every section of Xenia are praising this compound after it relieved them of disorders of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. Stubborn cases of rheumatism and neuritis have been ended. The Konjola Man is personally explaining the merits of this new medicine to vast crowds of people, and at the time, many well known men and women are strongly endorsing this remedy.

For instance just a few days ago Mr. A. H. Caplinger, 564 Cincinnati Avenue, Xenia, made the following statement to the Konjola Man who is at the Gallaher Drug Store, this city:

"Before taking Konjola I suffered from various ailments for many years," said Caplinger, "and I really didn't think it was possible for one medicine to restore my health like Konjola did."

"My health was in a general run-down condition and no matter what I would do for it, I still seemed to be dragging through life, half sick all the time. My stomach was in a terrible shape. Every meal I ate caused intense suffering in the pit of my stomach. The gas which used to form would rise into my throat and mouth making it very unpleasant for me. I would sometimes be attacked with awful belching spells when bits of undigested food would come up making it hard to keep any thing that I ate on my stomach. I was awfully constipated and I was filled with my system so that I felt tired and worn out all day long. At nights I couldn't rest well but would toss back and forth on the bed for hours before going to sleep. I was in this condition for almost a year, and was getting discouraged."

"I heard of Konjola through a friend and made up my mind to try this medicine. It's a blessing that I did for this medicine is just what I always needed. I have taken but three bottles of Konjola but it has made me feel better than I have in years. My appetite is wonderful now and I can sit down and eat whatever is placed before me without thought of after effects. The gas never forms now and the belching spells that used to come over me are permanently ended. I never have to take any kind of laxative because Konjola cleansed my whole inner-system. In fact, I feel like in every way and it is all due to my taking Konjola. I am glad to endorse your medicine because I know what it will do and think it should be used by everyone troubled as I was."

Personalities IN SPORT

LEON GOSLIN

Leon Allen "Goose" Goslin, Washington Senators' outfielder, was born at Salem, N. J., October 16, 1901.

The Goose started his pro baseball career with Columbia of the Sally League in 1920, but his terrific hitting got him a berth with the Senators the very next year.

Since that time the Goose has been slamming the apple for a .331 average. His fielding has fallen off quite a bit this season, but as he leads the American League hitters his job in the Senator garden seems cinched.

In the two world series in which he participated Goslin hit for an average of .326.

XENIA HAS AVENGED SNOW HILL DEFEAT

Retaliating for a defeat earlier in the season, the Xenia Country Club defeated the Snow Hill Country Club of Wilmington 39 to 17 in a return inter-city golf match over the local nine-hole course Wednesday afternoon.

It was the final match of this kind of the season for Xenia which broke even in four matches played. Xenia suffers both won and lost to Wilmington and Middletown in home-and-home matches this summer.

Jack Barlow, Xenia golfer, recorded the low score of the match, turning in a card of 75 for the eighteen holes. Shizes, Wilmington player, shot the low score for his team, negotiating the two rounds in 78.

Twenty-three players composed the visiting team. Following the match, players of both teams enjoyed dinner, served at the clubhouse by women members of the local club.

FEW CONTESTS IN DEMOCRATIC COMMITTEE RACES TUESDAY

There were few contests to enliven the race for membership on the Democratic Greene County Central Committee at Tuesday's primary election. In a majority of instances, candidates were unopposed.

H. A. Higgins defeated Hugh Barnes for a committee place in Xenia city third ward; Lawrence Barber won from Gilbert McCoy in Cedarville village; the name of Frank Engle was written on the ballots a sufficient number of times to defeat R. C. Ritenour in Cedarville Twp., while Fred Dawson and a man named Preston are believed to have tied in Miami Twp., each receiving one vote.

Following are believed to be names of successful Democratic committee candidates:

Bellbrook—O. W. Hook; Xenia third ward, H. A. Higgins; Xenia first ward, Harry Donovan; Xenia second ward, George Smith; Cedarville village, Lawrence Barber; Beaver Creek Twp., James James; Spring Valley Twp., Harper Linkhart; Fairfield, O. A. Wilson; Silver Creek Twp., J. M. Dwyer; Jamestown, Mrs. Bessie L. Robinson; Bath Twp., Fred Shellabarger; Yellow Springs, John Alexander; Ross Twp., M. K. Bittenour; Spring Valley village, J. W. Fulkerson; New Jasper Twp., Riley Jones; Bowersville, W. W. Warnock; Caesar Creek Twp., Emery W. Oglesbee; Xenia Twp., Raymond Wolf; Cedarville Twp., Frank Engle.

The committee may hold its organization meeting next week.

THE PARABLE OF YOUR TOWN AND MINE

Small Town Poison And Its Antidote.

By B. A. ROSENCRANS

Now there was a certain city and in this city the people did work together and did gather many shekels and pieces of silver.

And it came to pass the citizens of that town did rise up and say: "Behold, we are a mighty city and must have ways paved with brick and concrete and gravel, for our oxen and horses and chariots of fire," which they called automobiles. "We must have new schools for our young. We must have storm sewers, so when the rain descendeth and the floods come, our houses will fall not and we will be sitting pretty. We must have great churches, baseball uniforms, drinking fountains and fire trucks; parks for the hand and kids to play in, tourists to tour in and carnivals to carnival in."

And it was so. And when these things did come to pass, lo, there was a mighty increase in the tax rate. And the merchants rejoiced and cared not, for the citizens of that town were loyal and did shower them with business, blessings and much yen. And all that lived therein, did wax fat.

But it was not long so. "Alas," spake the baker, "many merchants and their wives and their neighbors will not eat my fatty bread."

"More alas," spake the butcher who bartered in cow, horse, dog and fish meat, "neither will the five thousand eat my fishes—nor the ninety and nine feast upon my fattest calves."

And likewise did the dealer who dealt in silks and clothes and fine linens rise up on his hind legs and spat a large sized spit and said unto them: "I have fine wares of certain small pieces of silver and the people journey into other lands to buy, and so do your neighbors and maids and man servants and so does your old man."

And, likewise, did the hardware dealer get exceedingly hot under his celluloid collar and kick like a Bay State steer as he break these words unto them: "Ya, you give me the glad go-by and purchase thy new stove, flat irons and barbed wire fence and screw drivers over in the distant city of catalogues. And it is I who must pay your preacher and the teacher of thy young."

Dealer wept. And he swore a large sized swear.

Then the rich merchant who didst offer fine raiment for young men and old men who sought to appear young in the eyes of the femininity of the village, got himself up on his toes and smote his fists with great potency, saying: "Hark ye unto me, you have sinned against me, yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of bankruptcy, you answer not to my calling, but throw kopecks and shekels and yen with lavish hands for mail-order boots and shoes and radio suits and what have you?

And in the same time it is I who must pay the fiddler in the band." And when the young of the city and the children of the tillers of the soil had got themselves much education from the taxes of the merchants they did hie themselves hence to other cities of that region and did come back with costly raiment and new shoes and hair tonic.

Now it came to pass, after the setting of the sun, the Chamber of Commerce, Ad Club, Rotary Club and its Amos, Elks and their Does, Masons and their Stars, Knights of Columbus and their daughters didst awaken. And they did join themselves unto the preachers and teachers and merchants and farmers and laborers, saying:

"Verily, verily I say unto you,

YOU TRADE WITH ME SO I CAN TRADE WITH HIM. THEN HE WILL TRADE WITH THEM SO THEY CAN TRADE WITH THEE."

And lo, and alas and alack, when the baker with the merchant did trade, and the merchant with the butcher did buy, and the butcher from the coal man and the coal man from the clothier, et cetera, it came to pass there was harmony among them and much glee. And there was also much joy.

And they blew upon the ram's horn and cornet and swinet and the French horn and flute and bass drum.

And henceforth they lived in the land of condensed milk and strained honey.

And it was so.

Who's Who and Timely Views

DRY PLANKS OF POLITICAL PARTIES ASSAILED
By VICTOR L. BERGER

(Victor Berger was born in Austria-Hungary in 1860. He came to the United States with his family in 1878 and became a resident of Milwaukee, Wis. For several years Berger was connected with various newspapers and soon became an active organizer of Socialists. He was a delegate of the People's party convention at St. Louis in 1896, and tried to organize sentiment for Eugene Debs at the convention. He became a member of the 62nd congress from Wisconsin (first Socialist ever elected to congress). Berger was again elected to congress in 1918, but was excluded during the war. In 1919 he was re-elected once more, but was refused admission. Once more he was elected by a great majority and finally reelected as a member of congress in 1922. Re-election followed in 1924 and 1926. He is national chairman of the Socialist party).

The Republican party, in spite of its platform pledge of strict law enforcement, has no intention of enforcing prohibition, and the results will be a continuation of the present ills which defeat true temperance.

Democratic politicians who intimate that a modification of the law will be possible with the election of Smith are deliberately misleading the voters. A victory for the Democratic party this year may mean the destruction of all constitutional and civil liberties in a vain effort to enforce the law.

I am more convinced than ever that bone dry prohibition is not desirable, even if it were possible, and not possible if it were desirable.

The Kansas City convention furnished the most glaring instance of the unmitigated hypocrisy of the leaders when those who adopted this solemn declaration to observe the prohibition laws were consuming more liquors during the convention than was being consumed anywhere else in the United States.

before daylight each morning the convention was in session, wagons made the rounds of hotels, collecting empty liquor bottles. From one of the large hotels the average was fifteen barrels of quart and pint bottles a day.

And the most joyous tipping was done on that midnight hour when the resolutions committee broke up after adopting the driest prohibition plank ever written into the platform, a plank pledging the Republican party to "observe" the law they were busy violating. Observance, like charity, should begin at home.

Thus the hypocritical attitude of the Republican party is to be continued, getting votes from the dries because the party is dry in theory, and getting the votes from wets because the party is wet in practice.

But if it is hypocritical—disgustingly hypocritical—for the Republicans to pretend to advocate either observance or enforcement of the Volstead act, what is to be said of the Democratic party, whose present leader, Alfred E. Smith, is to become the Moses of the "wets," the man who will lead them—and also the "dries"—out of the cellars right to the bars and the railings?

The south furnished the bigotry and fanaticism and the capitalists the sinews of war which made the prohibition movement and its leaders go around.

It is this delegation from the solid south in our congress that has not only resisted every attempt to re-examine the mistakes that was made when bone dry prohibition was attempted, but it has even been willing to cast aside, without the slightest compunction, every constitutional right found in our constitution in order to enforce the unenforceable Volstead act. Using the entire army and navy as but one of the minor demands of this crowd.

And now the Democratic party outdistances the Republicans in double dealing and hypocrisy. It adopts a platform plank on prohibition which is even stronger than the one Bryan inserted in the Democratic platform four years ago.

From corner to corner of the state is a full day's drive or many long hours' journey by rail. By telephone, the trip can be made almost instantly and, calling by number only, at a cost of only $1.55.

Calling by number, you can be connected with any distant town while you hold the line—often in less than a minute. If you do not know the number, ask for the Information operator. She will be glad to obtain it for you.

The next time you have occasion for out-of-town communication, try Long Distance; then you will use it every time.

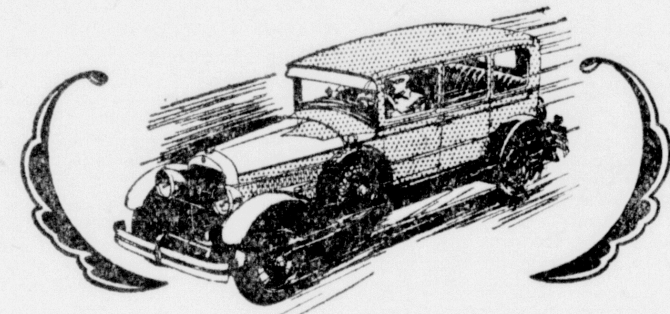

The cost of out-of-town telephone service is surprisingly low, as the rates on a few typical calls will show. For instance, calling by number during the day from Columbus to Dayton costs only $1.55—

CONTRACT FOR NEW RECREATION HALL AT ANTIOCH IS AWARDED

James and Edward Williams, Washington C. H., known as Jim and Ed Williams, contractors, were awarded the contract Wednesday for erection of the new recreation hall at Antioch College, Yellow Springs, it is announced by O. L. Inman, chairman of the college executive committee.

The building, which will cost approximately $60,000 will be erected at Livermore and S. College Sts., approximately northwest of the men's dormitory. It will be of brick, three-story construction and will accommodate three basketball courts on the main floor, besides dressing rooms, showers, gymnasium facilities and athletic offices. It will be built of red brick.

The contractors started staking off the building Wednesday and its completion will be rushed, although it is not expected to be occupied before December. ## CHAUTAUQUA OPENING PLEASES AUDIENCES; PLAY THURSDAY

The Shumate Bros. Quartet opened Chautauqua Wednesday afternoon before a large and appreciative audience. They gave the prelude Wednesday night, followed by William Rainey Bennett, who entertained and held his large audience with his lecture, "The Man Who Can". Many favorable comments were heard about the excellent program of chautauqua's opening day.

J. Smith Dameron, the potter craftsman, entertained his audience this afternoon with his lecture demonstration, "The Potter and the Clay". Not only did he make many beautiful pieces of pottery on the stage, but his homely philosophy woven into it, rounded out a pleasing program.

"Sun-Up," the play pronounced by critics as the outstanding play of last season, and the play that was presented in New York, London, and Chicago to large audiences, comes to chautauqua Thursday night. The cast is composed of Equity actors of New York headed by Marie Pavay, who has been in starring productions on Broadway for years.

"Sun-Up" is the character study of the mountain whites of North Carolina at the time of the World War. The Widow Cagle is played by Marie Pavay, and other characters include, Rufe, Emmy, the preacher, the stranger and Pap Todd.

The crowd that attended Wednesday night assures the committee of a successful chautauqua this year. The season ticket sale will continue until Wednesday and those who have not bought season tickets can still purchase them of the committee at the chautauqua grounds.

Johnson, Xenia, for the Republican nomination for congressman in the Seventh District. Congressman Brand was victorious in every county in the district, including Greene, Johnson's home county, where complete official returns revealed the incumbent received 3,018 votes against 1,640 for the Xenia attorney.

Congressman Brand will be opposed at the November election by Harry E. Rice, Xenia publisher, who was unopposed for the Democratic nomination.

FINAL UNOFFICIAL GIVES CINCINNATI MAN 5,568 MAJORITY

the Republicans have placed upon me, plans will be formulated at once for an aggressive educational campaign.

"The strength of the Republican national ticket and the outstanding character of the other candidates on the (Republican) state ticket assure Republican victory in Ohio in November," said Cooper.

Other unsuccessful candidates for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, on the basis of complete unofficial returns, were credited with having received the following votes: Attorney General Edward C. Turner, Columbus, 99,236; Fred Kohler, Cleveland, 25,115; Harry C. Smith, Cleveland, 16,181; Harry A. Shanley, Forest, 6,840.

For the G. O. P. nomination for lieutenant governor, full term, complete returns gave Brown 113,164 votes and Braden 112,569, it was said.

The following state tickets will be presented to Ohio voters at the election next November, according to unofficial returns available early today:

Republican:

For governor: Myers Y. Cooper, Cincinnati.

For lieutenant governor (full term): John T. Brown, Mechanicsburg.

For lieutenant governor (short term): George Braden, Warren.

For United States senator (full term): U. S. Senator Simeon D. Fess, Yellow Springs.

For United States senator (unexpired term): Congressman Theodore E. Burton, Cleveland.

For attorney general: Gilbert Bettman, Cincinnati.

For state auditor: Joseph T. Tracy, Columbus.

For state treasurer: Bert B. Buckley, Dayton.

For secretary of state: Clarence J. Brown, Blanchester.

For Ohio Supreme Court judges: Robert H. Day, Massillon, and Frank W. Gelsler, Springfield.

Democrat:

For governor: Congressman Martin L. Davey, Kent.

For lieutenant governor (full term): George S. Myers, Cleveland.

For lieutenant governor (unexpired term): no nomination made.

For United States senator (full term): Charles V. Truax, Bucyrus.

For United States senator (unexpired term): Graham Hunt, Cincinnati.

For attorney general: Francis Poulson, Cleveland Heights.

For state auditor: Daniel E. Butler, Toledo.

For state treasurer: Fred M. Bushnell, Mansfield.

For secretary of state: Carl W. Smith, Kenton.

For Ohio Supreme Court judges: Dennis F. Dunlavy, Ashtabula, and Frank S. Monnett, Columbus.

The contest between Beggs and Cooper for the Republican gubernatorial nomination constituted one of the closest primary election races in the history of Ohio politics.

Cooper led on early returns primary night. As the returns increased, Beggs continued to gain and took the lead yesterday morning. Belated returns during the day, however, consistently reduced Beggs' plurality. Late yesterday unofficial returns placed Cooper in the lead.

Cooper was the Republican nominee for governor two years ago but was defeated at the November election that year by Governor Vic Donahey. The result was close.

All of the apparent nominees on the Republican state ticket were endorsed by the Ohio Anti-Saloon League with the exception of Gilbert Bettman, Cincinnati, for attorney general. Of the Democratic candidates endorsed by the League, Congressman Martin L. Davey, Kent, Democratic nominee for governor, alone was successful.

The small dry rural counties throughout Ohio will receive the credit if the complete official tabulation is made in a day or two at the secretary of state's office here, shows that Cooper has been nominated.

It was the belated returns from these communities that took the lead away from Beggs and placed Cooper in the forefront. Beggs carried the large cities with the exception of Columbus, which supported Turner, and Cincinnati and Dayton, which favored Cooper.

Due to the activities of members of the Ohio Anti-Saloon League, who were dissatisfied with the failure of the League to officially endorse Beggs' candidacy, Beggs received a heavy dry vote in numerous rural counties.

Heeney Honeymoons at Coney Island Sweater Coat Useful

Tom Heeney, defeated aspirant for Gene Tunney's since vacated throne, takes a whirl on the roller coaster at Coney Island, N. Y., with his bride, the former Marian Dunn. The newlyweds are spending their honeymoon in New York.

No "Country" Here

There's nothing "countrified" about the looks of Joseph Turney, of Roosevelt, Okla., who holds the title of best dressed farm boy in the state. The suit of clothes in which Joseph is pictured won for him the rural Beau Brummel title.

CHANGE IN MOTOR FINANCE SEEN

With the entry of John J. Raskob and Pierre S. duPont, high officials of the General Motors company, into politics, a realignment of finances in the automotive industry is predicted. Rumors are current in Wall Street that other large holders have expressed their dissatisfaction with the political activities of Raskob and duPont, both of whom, it is rumored, have been selling General Motors stock and buying Chrysler. Walter P. Chrysler is one of the younger men rapidly acquiring importance in the automobile world. Raskob is at left, above; Chrysler, center, and duPont, right.

Writing Biography With Music

"I'm happy and in love, so why shouldn't I write in a humorous vein?" demands Irving Berlin, who has completed a new song whose lyric tells the story of his own spectacular rise from poverty to wealth. Irving is pictured playing his new composition to "his best friend and severest critic"—his wife, the former Ellin Mackay, in their New York home.

NO SUITABLE LANDING FIELD FOR FLYING PARADE FOUND HERE

Details for the "aerial parade" staged by a fleet of airplanes from Wright Field, scheduled as a feature of the Greene County Home-Coming, were completed Tuesday, according to Dr. A. C. Messenger, chairman of the program committee.

Major Jacob Fickel, commanding officer at the airport, accompanied by Captain St. Clair Street, came to Xenia Tuesday afternoon for the purpose of inspecting various sites in the hope of finding suitable landing space for the planes.

The officers were accompanied on the inspection trip by a Xenia committee composed of Dr. Messenger, Mayor John W. Prugh, City Manager S. O. Hale, P. H. Flynn and Dr. B. R. McClellan. Several prospective sites were inspected but a field sufficiently large for the planes to land could not be found. The planes, therefore, will not land, but will return to Wright Field and later the aviators participating in the air exhibition will come to Xenia in automobiles to attend the celebration.

Major Fickel advised local Home-Coming officials that the "aerial parade" will be presented on both Tuesday and Wednesday, the third and fourth days of the Home-Coming. The exhibitions will last one hour, from 4:30 to 5:30 p. m. each day.

Twelve planes will participate in the exhibition, including a bomber, a Ford transport piloted by Captain Edwards, who will perform stunt flying; one announcer, three pursuit planes and six observation planes. It is also planned to obtain daylight fireworks, which will be displayed from the air.

BLAST KILLS 13 MINERS

REPORT 152 ESCAPED DEATH; GAS BLAMED FOR MINE EXPLOSION

Majority Of Day-Shift Workers Were Leaving Shaft When Blast Occurred; Bodies Are Recovered

COALPORT, Pa., Aug. 16.—With thirteen miners killed in a gas explosion at the Number 3 Mine of the Irona Coal and Coke Company at Blain City, near here late yesterday, federal and state mine bureau officials today examined the blast torn workings where 152 other men narrowly escaped with their lives.

After a checkup today, company officials said that 165 men had gone down with the day shift. Of this number, most of the men were well on their way out before the blast let go. George McCae, of Pittsburgh, representing the Federal Mines Bureau and Ira H. Thomas, deputy state inspector of mines, were at the scene of the blast today. Of the fourteen men who were at work nearly three miles from the mine mouth when the blast let go, only one, Mareno Coccia, 37, escaped the full force of the explosion and came out alive. The fact that the day shift had started out of the workings shortly before the blast probably averted a greater death toll. Most of the men were well toward the mouth of the mine when they heard the explosion.

MISSING AMERICAN COLLEGIANS FOUND SAFE NEAR ARCTIC

Canadian Mounted Policeman Locates Four Youths

REGINA, Sask., Aug. 16.—With hope rapidly waning that they would ever be found alive, the four American college youths who set out in two canoes to reach the Arctic Circle, today were reported safe in the wilderness south of Fort Churchill.

Word of their safety was brought back to civilization by Corporal J. J. Malloy, R. C. M. P., stationed at Pelican Narrows. The news came after four weeks anxious waiting.

A radio message had been sent to Malloy sometime ago ordering the "mounties" to proceed north and bring the party back. Malloy had not received the message, but he accidentally came across the group of young men.

The party has changed its plans and are now using a route to reach Fort Churchill that will keep them fairly well in touch with other men in the wilderness. They have also been equipped with fresh supplies and rifles.

The party is composed of John Fuller, 21, of Keokuk, Ia.; Max J. Kane, 19, of Iowa City; Gordon Armstrong, 20, Lake Iowa, and Peddar C. Bodgum, 24, of Crystal, Ia.

The group left Iowa City May 29, with the avowed intention of going to Chesterfield inlet.

RE-OPEN MINES

NELSONVILLE, O., Aug. 16.—At least six mines and perhaps more, shortly will be operating in Hocking Valley under the scale approved by the miners' union, leaders of the miners here said today. The scale will be $5.70 a day. The non-union scale now being paid to more than 1,500 miners in the Hocking field is $5 a day.

BROWN PROBES LOCHER VOTE

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 16.—An investigation of a report that U. S. Sen. Cyrus Locher, Cleveland, dry, may have defected Attorney General Hunt, Cincinnati, liberal candidate for the short term Democratic nomination for U. S. senator, was launched here this afternoon by Secretary of State Brown.

An unofficial report received at the secretary of state's office this afternoon said that the Cuyahoga County election board had discovered a mistake of 10,000 votes favoring Locher.

PASSENGERS MAROONED ON GROUNDED STEAMER

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 16.—Approximately 100 passengers of the Pacific mail steamer Ecuador aground on the rocks of Cape San Lazaro, Lower California, were awaiting rescue by the fruit ship San Mateo as dawn broke over the Pacific this morning. There was no immediate danger, Captain T. K. Oakds, of the Ecuador, reported by radio. The San Mateo, northbound, is about 100 miles south of the stranded steamer. The ship, about 10,000 tons dead weight, was resting easily in the fairly calm sea and expected to hold out until rescue was effected.

The Ecuador was bound from San Francisco to New York and carried a first class and steerage passengers.

HOOVER WILL START DRIVE FOR "SILENT VOTE" IN CAMPAIGN

Anticipates Warm Fight To Open Capital Office

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., Aug. 16.—Convinced that he can be elected to the presidency only by winning the independents to his cause, Herbert Hoover will start east tonight to wage a campaign against the so-called "silent vote" of the country.

The Republican nominee will strive to capture the support of women's organizations, the organized forces of social reform and the business element, which frequently ignores elections. He will seek to arouse the interest of that large class of Americans, who take their politics lightly and who go to the ballot box but seldom. If he can get them to the polls and persuade them to vote Republican, Hoover feels assured of the election.

The Republican candidate indicated the strategy of his campaign in his acceptance speech, when he devoted large portions of his address to the subjects of social reform and child welfare. He made a special plea, in fact, to the women of the country, urging them to take an interest in politics generally and in the presidential election especially.

After declaring the problems of America were "moral and spiritual" to a "much greater degree" than economic, Hoover added: "The participation of women in politics means a keener realization of the importance of these questions it means higher political standards."

Hoover has discounted all reports of his followers that he will be "in a walk." He rather has heeded the advice of those lieutenants who tell him he must wage a hard battle to win the election. Consequently, he has determined to take the campaign seriously and to use all the executive ability, for which he is famous, in conducting his own campaign.

Hoover will get back to Washington, prepared to make "three or four" key speeches, at strategic points in eastern and border line states.

The Republican organization probably will force him to make a dozen all told although he personally would prefer to rest his campaign upon the lesser number of addresses. But regardless of the number of speeches, the nominee will see to it that his organization is "letter-perfect" and that it is making a 100 per cent effort to get out the independent vote.

The nominee at present plans an "office campaign." He will open offices in a private home near his own at 2300 S. Street, in the fashionable "northwest" residential section of the capital. It has been rumored here that Mrs. Hoover declined to let her home be turned into an office not even for a presidential candidate so Hoover was forced to arrange for offices in a neighbor's home.

From this headquarters, he will conduct his campaign, making a small number of trips for his speeches at strategic points during the heat of the campaign.

LANDSLIDES HALT RAILWAY SERVICE

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Aug. 16.—All train service on the Southern Railway between Asheville, Salisbury and Spartanburg was stopped today due to landslides and washouts caused by torrential rains in this section during the past few days.

The French, Broad and Swannanoa Rivers were rising at the rate of one foot an hour and were reported to be out of their banks at several points. Numbers of families have been driven from their homes in the lowlands as a result of the flood. Authorities are warning people who live along the rivers to abandon their homes.

A landslide between Old Fort and Ridge Crest covered the railway tracks and halted traffic. Southern Railway officials said it probably would be twenty-four hours before a train could be moved on the line between Asheville and Salisbury, but they hoped to have the line open to Spartanburg late today.

No lives have been lost.

FOUR TAKEN ABOARD TANKER WHEN PLANE BECOMES DISABLED

Report One Killed; Plane Swept From Course By Wind

KEY WEST, Fla., Aug. 16.—The American tanker Legionnaire picked up four men from the disabled airplane General Machado last night between Key West and Havana in the teeth of a howling gale, according to radio advice received here, but whether all were rescued alive remained in doubt early today.

The four men aboard the plane were Robert H. Fatt, pilot; Angel Alfonso, mechanic; Luther Ritz, radio expert who was trying out a wireless telephone installed on the plane this week and C. Norman Ageton, of Flushing, N. Y.

According to a radio message relayed from the tanker to the naval radio station here by the coast guard cutter Sauk, all of the plane's personnel were saved. However, a later message, received early today at the coast guard station at St. Petersburg, stated that Ageton had been killed.

The plane took off from Havana at four o'clock yesterday afternoon. When it failed to arrive here an hour later, a sister ship was sent to search for the missing plane. Then at seven o'clock a wireless message from General Machado reported that the plane was circling over a tanker but was being buffeted severely by a forty-mile gale which had swept it off its course. Heavy seas were running.

Shortly after eight o'clock, the Legionnaire picked up the crew of the General Machado and the plane was salvaged. The tanker is bound for Tampa from Port Arthur, Texas, with a cargo of oil.

When the plane left Havana light winds were reported. The gale came from the gulf of Mexico without warning.

The plane was a tri-Fokker land plane.

MARINES DEFEAT NICARAGUA REBELS

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Aug. 16.—The vigorous effort being made by United States marines and national militia to clear the Coco River district of rebels and cutlars is meeting with complete success, according to advices received here today.

One skirmish was reported from that region in which four Nicaraguan bandits were killed, one wounded and five captured. The Americans were commanded by Capt. M. A. Edison. They suffered no casualties.

Airplanes are giving the United States forces and the national militia a big advantage in locating isolated bands of rebels.

Gen. Emiliano Chamorro, former president and a power in Nicaraguan politics, has notified the electoral board he is a candidate for the national senate for the department of Matagalpa.

FAMOUS ITALIAN FLYER SUCCUMBS

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Aug. 16.—The Italian trans-Atlantic flyer Major Carlo Del Prete died at 5:55 o'clock this morning following an amputation of the right leg late yesterday. Major Del Prete was seriously injured here a few days ago in the crash of the Italian Savoia seaplane in which he and Major Arturo Ferrarin made their non-stop flight from Rome to the Brazilian coast. Major Del Prete was one of the best airmen in the Italian army.

William A. Hill, of Binghamton, who like Morris, is an avowed dry, is mentioned as a likely successor to the state chairmanship.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—The sudden death of George K. Morris, chairman of the Republican state committee, elevates Miss Sarah Schuyler Butler, daughter of Nicholas Murray Butler, to the state chairmanship of the party.

With Mrs. Cornelius O'Day, chairwoman of the Democratic state committee by virtue of the resignation of Lieutenant Governor Corning, women for the first time in history head the state committees of the two parties. Both Miss Butler and Mrs. O'Day had been vice-chairmen of their committees.

The body of Mr. Morris, who died of apoplexy in his suite at the Frake Hotel will be taken tomorrow to Amsterdam, N. Y., for burial.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow in the chapel of the National Casket Company. The body will be interred in the family plot at Amsterdam.

IS NOMINEE

Myers Y. Cooper, Cincinnati, has apparently won his second nomination for governor from the Republican party. He is leading Congressman James T. Begg, Sandusky, by more than 5,000 votes in the complete unofficial count.

REPUBLICAN STATE NEW YORK CHAIRMAN REMOVED SUDDENLY

Death Throws Party In Confusion In Candidate's State

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Republican campaign plans for the state of New York were upset, at least temporarily, today as a result of the sudden and unexpected death of George K. Morris, the aggressive chairman of the Republican state central committee, who had already assumed the major role in the party's great attempt to defeat Governor Al Smith in his own state.

Because the major plans of the campaign in the Empire State had already been worked out in a series of conferences between state leaders, and because Morris had himself had a large part in shaping these plans, it is inevitable, in the opinion of some of the important Republican leaders here, that the re-organization and launching of the vital New York campaign must suffer a set-back of at least two weeks—and it may be as much as a full month—because of this fateful intervention of death.

At least ten days will be required for the routine of assembling the state committee to elect a successor. Two weeks more probably will be required for the reorganization of the campaign bureau and the necessary revision of strategy to accommodate the change in the new personnel.

Miss Sarah Schuyler Butler, daughter of President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia University and vice-chairman of the Republican state committee hurried to New York today from her summer home in Southampton, L. I., to assume nominal direction of the state headquarters. The emergency places a woman at the head of the great G. O. P. machine in New York for the first time in history.

Morris, who had been state chairman continuously since 1922, when he was selected for the job by former Nathan L. Miller, was struck down by a cerebral hemorrhage. Two hours after he had been seized by a fainting spell at the Metropolitan Club, where he was breakfasting with National Committeemen Charles D. Hilles, he died in his hotel room—before specialists summoned by the house physician could arrive. He was a widower, his wife having died in 1920.

William A. Hill, of Binghamton, who like Morris, is an avowed dry, is mentioned as a likely successor to the state chairmanship.

FINAL UNOFFICIAL GIVES CINCINNATI MAN 5,568 MAJORITY

Reported Race For Lieutenant Governor Still In Doubt

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 16.—A tabulation of the complete unofficial returns at Secretary of State Brown's office this afternoon gave Myers Y. Cooper, Cincinnati, a lead of 5,388 votes over Begg. The vote now stands: Cooper, 259,783; Begg, 254,295.

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 16.—That Myers Y. Cooper, Cincinnati, has been selected as the Republican nominee for governor of Ohio was indicated early today by complete unofficial returns from Tuesday's statewide primary election.

The contest for the G. O. P. nomination for lieutenant governor, full term, appeared to be in doubt. With 381 precincts missing, State Representative John T. Brown, Mechanicsburg, was leading George C. Braden, Warren, by 595 votes, according to unofficial returns. Braden was nominated for the short term as lieutenant governor.

Officials at Cooper headquarters here stated that, according to reports made to them, Cooper had a lead of 5,568 over Congressman James T. Begg, Sandusky. Complete unofficial returns, it was stated, gave Cooper 259,725 votes while Begg received 254,157.

"From information which I regard as reliable, it appears I have been nominated for governor on the Republican ticket," declared Myers Y. Cooper, in a statement issued early today.

"It is a source of great gratification to me to know that this expression of confidence on the part of the Republican voters came from so many sections of Ohio," Cooper continued. "Being mindful of the great responsibility which

FORGERIES TRACED TO MASTER CROOK

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Directed by a single master mind, a nationwide gang of forgers has mulcted banks in the United States of $10,000,000 in the past twelve months, it was asserted today by Hugh D. Combs, general superintendent of claims of the Fidelity and Guaranty Company.

His detectives are trying to trap the master forger and smash the highly centralized racket. Combs said he believes the $10,000,000 embezzlement charged Cornelius Callahan, formerly a secretary of the Baitly Corporation; $106,000 forgeries at the Manufacturers' Trust Company; the $200,000 peculations laid to the Donahue gang and another $500,000 job here were work of the gang.

He professed to know nothing of reports from Toledo that New York and Burns detectives are there hunting a trunk said to hold $500,000 securities alleged stolen here by the Moe Rashkin gang. Rashkin and several others are jailed in Detroit.

Do you enjoy your food?

If you do not enjoy your food it is a true sign that you are losing your appetite. And when your appetite is "gone" it means you haven't the resistance to ward off disease. Loss of appetite is only a symptom. General weakness pervades the entire body. There is no desire to work or play.

Rich, red, blood builds and sustains

Your physician will tell you that lowered vitality is the result of an insufficient supply of red blood cells—those vitalizing elements in the blood that nourish and sustain the body.

When you get your red blood cells back up to normal, that sluggish, let-down feeling, loss of appetite, rheumatism, boils, pimples, and skin troubles disappear. You get hungry again; sleep soundly; solid flesh takes the place of that which was once flabby. You feel strong; and your nerves become steady.

EX-XENIAN WINS

GEORGE BENHAM

Sheriff George Benham, Clark County, former Xenian, won the Republican nomination for sheriff in Tuesday's primary with the biggest vote given any candidate.

Benham, opposed by eight other candidates, polled a majority of 989 votes over the combined vote of his entire opposition. While Clark County voters were making a clean-up of what was termed the "Court House gang" they did not include Benham with this group as he was appointed to the position of sheriff after the last elected sheriff resigned under pressure following an office scandal.

The vote for sheriff follows: Benham, 989; Stewart M. Gower, 1,093; Rollie E. Black, 1,075; William Wendt, 845; James E. Inskip, 684; Thomas C. Mumma, 628; L. J. Gram, 448; W. H. Ernest, 234; J. B. Harris, 150.

The World And All INVENTIONS

Just one request to my readers. I wish they would not write to me about their inventions. I love to get letters from readers, and I try to answer each one, although I do sometimes fall short in this. But when I get a letter about some wonderful contrivance that one of my readers has invented, I am almost wholly flabbergasted.

It just happens that I have no mechanical sense whatever. I once learned to operate a bicycle, and I now operate, with mild success, a typewriter and a camera. These are the limits of my mechanical attainments. I cannot put a ribbon into my typewriter, and if the camera refuses to work I have to take it to the man in the store.

So, you see, it is hopeless to try to make me appreciate the magnitude of your contribution to human welfare by describing your invention in detail. Drawings, carefully made to scale, help almost not at all. As soon as I see a picture of a cam and a lug, apparently about to disagree violently about some question of poppet valves, I become bleary-eyed and my reason, such as it is, totters perceptibly on its make-shift throne.

I love to hear about the reader's family, his problems, his dogs, his ambitions, hopes, fears and philosophy. I especially like to learn the reader's opinion about the greatest person in the world, past or present. In fact, there are few subjects I don't like to read about if my readers are interested in them. And all of the few are inventions.

If my inventive readers will pardon the heretical opinion, I believe that this civilization of ours is cursed with inventions. Out where

I live, on the outskirts of New York, it is almost impossible to leave the windows open in the summer time, on account of the inventions. There are inventions that blow forth seven kinds of jazz and the elegant mispronunciations of announcers. There are inventions that go roaring past on wheels, and there are inventions that go flying through the air overhead, hitting tremendously on all twelve. There is an invention in my study that rings and rings, and when I speak into it it says, "What number? Scuse it, please!" Yes, I'm all for progress, but sometimes I am bowed down by the tumult of the inventions. This is one of the times. So please write me in detail about anything else.

XENIANS USED MOST WATER ON TUESDAY

Water consumption during the last week in Xenia has averaged a million gallons daily, establishing a high record for the summer, officials of the municipal water-works plant announced Thursday. The peak was reached last Tuesday when 1,075,000 gallons of water were pumped. The million mark was touched last Monday and total consumption Wednesday was announced as 1,045,000 gallons. The increased consumption is attributed to the intense heat, the lack of rain and the fact citizens are using a large volume of water for sprinkling lawns.

It May Be Urgent

When your Children Cry for It

Castoria is a comfort when Baby is fretful. No sooner taken than the little one is at ease. If restless, a few drops soon bring contentment. No harm done, for Castoria is a baby remedy, meant for babies. Perfectly safe to give the youngest infant; you have the doctors' word for that! It is a vegetable product and you could use it every day. But it's in an emergency that Castoria means most. Some night when constipation must be relieved—or colic pains—or other suffering. Never be without it; some mothers keep an extra bottle, unopened, to make sure there will always be Castoria in the house. It is effective for older children, too; read the book that comes with it.

MAKING AND LOSING MILLIONS

No more than five out of every 100 persons who speculate in stock market have any chance of quitting with a profit!

This is not a casual estimate, but a calculation carefully arrived at through a study of brokers' records by Fred C. Kelly, financial writer, who analyzes the current record-breaking market operations.

Of the estimated 12,000,000 Americans, most of them newcomers to speculation, who are "playing the market," 5 per cent of winners is made up almost entirely of hardened, experienced speculators who have plentiful capital, Mr. Kelly finds. The number of uninitiated outsiders who have made money at the end of a month or a year of market dabbling is almost infinitesimal.

But a handful of outsiders do tumble into easy money, and it is the tales of their quickly won wealth, rather than the recital of the millions of failures, that draw new moths to the stock market flame.

"I know a hard-working stenographer who learned the market by noting the methods and operations of her employer," writes Mr. Kelly. "For three years she made her own clothes, went without vacations or minor luxuries to save what she needed to start a little speculative account. And you can believe it or not, she has won and kept nearly $200,000." But she is the one success in 1,000 cases.

Of the failures the investigator encountered, one man lost his life savings of $8,000, a woman lost all she had, $900 with which she had planned a trip home; an experienced operator saw his capital reduced from $75,000 to $3,000 within a trading week.

To test the value of the tips on which most inexperienced speculators do their buying, Mr. Kelly played the market "on paper" for several months, losing heavily, "on paper" of course. It might be a good plan for others to try this scheme first.

A LEARNED DECISION

A Florida judge has decided that a married man is entitled to a night off, once in a while, and incidentally he decreed that a man had a right to slap his wife, not too hard, of course, if her objections to the night off took the form of violence toward the family property.

It seems that the defendant wanted to go out with the boys on one particular night. Wife objected and thereby hangs a tale and the learned judge's decision.

Hubby went out, despite the objections raised, and then the wife went out and broke the windshield on the family flivver. That is what brought on the trouble and the case in court for in righteous indignation the husband bashed the face of the partner of his joys.

All right. Into court he went with a charge of wife beating hanging over him. Wife, when the test came and her husband faced a jail sentence, weakened and said: "He only slapped me a little."

And then the judge set it all right by saying that the man could go out occasionally, if he wanted to, that he might slap his wife a little if necessity arose and then discharged the defendant.

Thus has the wave of femininity that has threatened to engulf man, been swept back. Just about like Mrs. Partington swept back the Atlantic ocean with her broom.

The Way of the World

By GROVE PATTERSON

PENALTIES OF PROSPERITY
France hears that the United States spends $9,000,000 a year to discover the secret of the "death ray" invented by French scientists in 1917. The inventors are said to be penniless, because the French government would not give them sufficient financial backing. French scientists are angry and like Uncle Sam even less than before. Free spending arouses jealousy. Prosperity has its penalties. If you want to be popular, be poor.

ROAD VISION
Early motorists can remember the days when black-topped New York state roads were a joy to middle westerners used to riding on dirt and in ruts. New York was one of the pioneer states with its smooth, macadam highways. Today those roads are too narrow and their foundation is insufficient for the truck traffic. New York is pioneering again in wide, concrete and brick roads with several traffic lanes. Roads of the future in this country will be much wider, and trucks will have roads of their own.

STOPPING THE SHOW
Not long ago an actor read a chapter from the Bible in a famous New York night club. Half the people in the room were drunk or on the way. The actor studied the tumult with his voice and the verses. There was strange attention. When he finished there was silence—impressive silence—for some seconds. And then everybody went on with the show. That's a scene that's lived a hundred times in life. Something "gets to us." We are brought to attention. We are impressed. As a rule we do nothing about it. We do not set out to improve our habits. We go on with the show.

THE RAINY DAY
Fifteen years ago a Philadelphia man inherited a quarter of million dollars. At the same time he was told by his doctor that he had not more than a year to live. He weighed 545 pounds. He set out to spend his $250,000 before death took away all his wants. He lived 15 years, dying just the other day. As he was to be expected, he died poor poverty after having been a rubber in a Turkish bath and a taxi start. When we are laying down a policy for the future we do well to assume that the future is going to be a long one. The rainy day may come tomorrow or it may come 15 years hence. And it may rain for years.

The Diary of a New Yorker

By CLARK KINNAIRD

NEW YORK. — Notes on the day's doings of a New Yorker:

To the office by subway, and as I swayed upon a strap in the jammed car, I thought it miraculous that New York is not ravaged frequently by epidemic and plague because of conditions in the subways.

Most of the morning answering letters from readers, and there would be more pleasure in this daily task if so many persons didn't ask the same questions.

To Sand's Point for lunch, and Arthur Brisbane there, and Charles MacArthur, the playwright, and Nelson McMein, the cover-artist, and members of the Argentine polo team, and many others. And I attracted attention to myself, by noisily upsetting my water glass upon the table. The hostess did not, as some books of etiquette prescribe, relieve my embarrassment by upsetting her own glass. And it is just as well that she didn't adhere to such a convention, for a moment later, in the library, one of the Argentine polo players upset his coffee cup upon his lap.

Brisbane gave me a lift to the station, in the dictograph-equipped limousine in which he produces many of his editorials that made him the most widely read editorialist in the world. And he told how when he lunched with Coolidge, the president said, "Mr. Brisbane, you wrote a paragraph for the Washington Herald and clippings of it were sent to me from all over the United States. That newspaper must have a huge circulation."

Like Coolidge, many persons do not know that Brisbane's editorials appear in more than 1,000 newspapers, and that he is paid $260,000 a year for writing them. And I asked Brisbane some important questions which he answered with more courtesy than I deserved. When I asked him, "What do you think of the new biography of Mr. Hearst by John K. Winkler?" he replied, "I've read only the parts that apply to myself, and these portions are full of inaccuracies." I told him that thousands of newspapermen like myself hoped he would write his memoirs, and he confided that he hoped to do a book about some of the interesting persons he has known in his fulsome life.

Back to the office, where Henry Edward Warner, of Baltimore, of campaigners for reform in men's dress, came to see me, and he admitted that his wife wouldn't allow him to be as free in his dress as he would like to be. "All married men," he said defensively, "are cowards." He related how when he appeared in a dining-room minus a coat, the head-waiter requested him to leave and obtain one, but this he refused to do until the women present put on coats. The waiter suggested that it was according to the wishes of women guests that men were requested to wear coats. So Warner thereupon conducted a poll of the women in the dining room and found that not one cared whether men wore coats or not, and most wanted him to be comfortable in his shirt.

Warner's campaign! Here's luck to the evening came Frank (Bill) McLearn, the correspondent, who claims distinction as the only man who never honeymooned at Niagara Falls or wanted to. (It's his old home town, and he's a confirmed bachelor.) We went to the Chinese Theatre on the Bowery and two hours of a five-hour play that I could say more about if this newspaper had Chinese characters on its typesetting machines. When it dulled upon us, we took a taxi to Brooklyn Bridge, and walked across it, enjoying what is to me one of New York's most glorious nocturnal sights. And so by subway to home and to bed to read myself asleep.

Kellygrams

By FRED C. KELLY

Back in my home town, where real estate was comparatively cheap, and show window space cost little, Horace Zell, who had a general store, used to crowd hundreds of articles into one small window.

I've known him to exhibit lawn mowers, shoes, canned goods, neckwear, goldfish and manicure sets all heaped in together.

But, on Fifth avenue, where show window space is worth a fortune, I recently saw a large window containing nothing but one striped shirt and a pair of socks.

I'm hoping now that some enterprising storekeeper will some day devote his most spacious window to the display of a single little, bone collar button.

GO TO COURT TO WIN SLEEP

NEW YORK. — Even people who live on Broadway have to sleep. A cabaret opened on top of a Broadway hotel. It promptly proceeded to make night into day, to the accompaniment of a whining saxophone and the clatter of dishes and silver.

Folks on the street below hearing the music, went up to the roof and became patrons. Everything was well until—
The apartment house next door brought suit, backed by the 100 families which tenanted it. Damages of $50,000 was asked. The folks next door wanted their sleep and have gone to court to get it.

And if the Frenchman who said he didn't see anything in America except hotels had lowered his eyes a bit he might have noticed a filling station brightening a corner here and there. — Macon Telegraph.

WHAT ARE THE WILD WAVES SAYING?

How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

"By Their Hands Shall You Know Them"

Hands are a very important part of beauty—so important, in fact that we find not infrequently, that a woman is judged by what her hands tell about her. There is far more to the study of hands than the average person realizes, aside from structure there is gesture, firmness and softness, or a perfect blend of all. There are fingers and nails, texture and contour, and upon the whole, hand beauty depends.

American women have not yet developed that charming absence of self-consciousness which characterizes their French cousins. Gestures to the French are poems of movement, significant and secure. And yet—we should cultivate it, for as Balzac says, "Man speaks with three tongues. We acquire the faculty of imposing silence upon our lips, upon our eyes, upon our eyebrows and upon our foreheads; the hand alone does not dissemble—no feature is more expressive than the hand."

It is so—there is no question about it, and BECAUSE it is, we must learn the grace and ease of movement which is so perfect that it seems to emanate from our feelings and become involuntary, dictated by the emotion of the inner self.

However, do not overdo the gestures, for beauty lies not only in movement, but in repose, and I must emphasize here the fact that many women are serious offenders in a far too frequent hand motion.

Fussing with your hair, pulling at some part of your face or your gown is to indulge in a habit that correct etiquette frowns upon, and to which character analysts attribute only negative qualities. Try to remember to keep your hands away from your face. Once you have completed your toilette in the privacy of your own boudoir, you should be quite through until you return to it. So much for the good manners of hand control.

Now for the exterior of these two important appendages of yours. Your hands— their texture and color—are only second in importance to your face. And while they are not so susceptible to wrinkles and blemishes and other such imperfections, there are, nevertheless, certain things we must guard against. The first and most common—are chapping, redness and roughness. Extreme exposure may cause this. The splashing of hands first in hot and then in cold water may do it. Improper drying is another factor.

Exposure to inclement weather is another cause of unlovely hands. But of all these, there is not one which cannot be guarded against. There are two places where the average woman should keep her hands prepared. The first is on the bathroom shelf. There is on it a convenient little enamel cabinet. A nice place in your home. I truly believe that if every woman would buy one of these little metal cabinets exactly the size and shape which is used for a man's shaving cabinet, we would have a great many more beautiful women in the world. You know, yourself, how easy it is to remember to do a thing if a reminder is hung right in front of you and intrudes on your consciousness a dozen times a day. I dox na ada p ti shr shrh

"Our state nutrition specialist urged us to eat more whole grain bread and cereals. But now comes a woman demonstrator who tells a class of about 35 of our women that white bread is more nutritious than whole wheat. I am president of the Home Economics club in my town and would like the truth to present to my club."

The demonstrator of any product would naturally be instructed to make statements that would favor the selling of that product. Mrs. F. In this case, one has taken a very small part of the truth and presented it as the whole truth.

The part of truth this demonstrator has taken is that of equal weights of bread made of white flour and whole grain flour, as there is some residue left in the whole grain which is not digested. Therefore, there would be a small amount more of energy of caloric value obtained from the white flour. From this the demonstrator has evidently reasoned that the white flour is more nutritious. But the word nutritious implies a great deal more than simply the energy value of food. There are the vitamin, mineral element and the protein or building qualities to consider; also the anti-constipating effects.

So, on the different counts of nutrition, you can see that whole wheat bread is by far more nu-ter analysts attribute only negative qualities. Try to remember to keep your hands away from your face. Once you have completed your toilette in the privacy of your own boudoir, you should be quite through until you return to it. So much for the good manners of hand control.

tritious than white bread. However, do not get the idea that some food faddists are trying to promulgate, that purified products such as white flour, sugars, etc., are poisonous. They are not. If you prefer white bread, eat it. But remember that you have to make more conscious efforts to get your vitamins, complete proteins and mineral elements in your other foods.

No grain has a biologically complete protein—that is, a protein which contains all of the building elements necessary for repair and growth; so even though you are using the whole grain products, you must also have foods that give the complete protein, such as milk and cheese, eggs and flesh foods.

I will add that the reason millers and flour companies have given for their propaganda against whole wheat flour is that whole grain has not good keeping qualities. Being much richer, insects thrive more readily in it and thus it is more difficult to keep. The vermin, at least, seem to have sense enough to know that it is a better food for their young. However, when there is a greater demand for the whole grain cereals and flours, then there will be a quicker turn-over, and this objection will be done away with.

Peter's Adventure

By MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

At Professor Heron's School

"How many birds are you related to, anyhow, Billy Boat-Bill?" cried I. "Did I just hear you say that Stork was your cousin?" He doesn't live around here, does he? It seems to me that in my youth I was told that he lived in "the old country" wherever that may be—not in these parts, I am sure. "Whoever told you that was quite right," declared Billy Boat-Bill. "When I went to the Heron's school—"

"Who interrupted him?" "Where was that?" asked she. "Over in the marshes by the side of an old willow tree that had toppled into the water," replied Billy Boat-Bill. "My what great times we youngsters did have! I remember them well. There was a nest of water-hens hidden in the trunk, but we found them and ate a nestling every recess until they were all gone. Our teacher was kind but firm. We had to mind Professor Heron, I can tell you. Teacher was no Night Watchman, but a Common Heron, you know! Well, as I was saying, one of the things that I learned at school was about Cousin Stork. Perhaps I can remember the lesson so well because he is related to me. At any rate Stork's real home is in Africa, but he really likes Europe much better, and so every year he and his wife fly to Holland, or to some part of the lowlands where there is lots of water, plenty of frogs and few guns, and hatch and bring up their family. "If they don't like guns they tritious than white bread. However, do not get the idea that some food faddists are trying to promulgate, that purified products such as white flour, sugars, etc., are poisonous. They are not. If you prefer white bread, eat it. But remember that you have to make more conscious efforts to get your vitamins, complete proteins and mineral elements in your other foods.

No grain has a biologically complete protein—that is, a protein which contains all of the building elements necessary for repair and growth; so even though you are using the whole grain products, you must also have foods that give the complete protein, such as milk and cheese, eggs and flesh foods.

I will add that the reason millers and flour companies have given for their propaganda against whole wheat flour is that whole grain has not good keeping qualities. Being much richer, insects thrive more readily in it and thus it is more difficult to keep. The vermin, at least, seem to have sense enough to know that it is a better food for their young. However, when there is a greater demand for the whole grain cereals and flours, then there will be a quicker turn-over, and this objection will be done away with.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON. — A week of association with Alfred E. Smith's political organization in New York after about a month of association with Herbert Hoover's political organization here in Washington, leads me to the inevitable conclusion that nothing is quite so hopeless as politics.

There is little, if anything, to choose between the two outfits. In fact, they are hard to tell apart, even to look at. They are still harder to tell apart, to listen to. There is nothing about either of them to put your finger down on and say: "This is real. This is genuine. This actually means something."

One is as intangible as the other—as intangible as an ectoplasm—you are doubtful if there is any such thing.

We all take it, I am agreed that the two major parts have long ceased, either one of them, to signify anything except that they sport different emblems. Their platforms are equally meaningless.

There does, however, appear to be a difference between their respective candidates. They certainly are contrasting personalities and mentalities—yes, and moralities—considered as individuals.

Some people say: "Al Smith is the issue in this campaign." I do not see why they cannot say, with just as much force: "Herbert Hoover is the issue."

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

Is "All Fair In Love" or Should Fair Play Rule?

What is the truth about the old saying that has been used from time immemorial to excuse unfair methods of love making—"all's fair in love and war"? Poison gas, bombing of non-combatants, firing on hospital ships have all been excused on the grounds of Hoover is as representative of one class of ideas as Smith is representative of another.

Curiously enough, each represents exactly what you'd think the other would represent, if precedent counts for anything. Smith—the stay-at-home, the fish dealer, the truckman—represents adventure, romance, all that's colorful. Hoover—the world traveler, the soldier of fortune—represents staid, orthodox respectability.

If Smith is an issue, to the voter who wants more jazz in government, or to the voter who distinctly objects to any more, why not Hoover decidedly an issue to the voter who prefers the classical, or to the one who's sick of it?

Yes, indeed, Hoover and Smith are an issue apiece, provided their managers will permit them to be issues.

The difference between the pair, however, is precisely what their managers are trying to sweat out of them, respectively. Smith's management is doing its best to tone him down. Hoover's management is trying to pep him up considerably. The Smith-ites want to make their man appear "safer." The Hoover-ites want to make theirs more "popular."

If their committees have their way, Alfred E. Smith and Herbert Hoover will be as much alike, by next November, as their parties and their platforms.

That is the answer I would give to Troubled, who has been going with a boy and discovered that he is the boy friend of her best girl friend. He has not been very true to his girl, as he called her. Troubled, as he has been attentive to you, but I think you should find out how the girl feels about him. Imagine how you would feel if you were in her place.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am 18 and have known my boy friend four years. I am wondering if it would hurt my reputation to let him put his arm around me in public. My mother thinks this boy is very nice, but if she knew that I let him kiss me she would deny me the privilege of going out with him. Does it hurt to let this boy kiss me although I have only been out with him twice?"

Allowing endearments in public is considered bad taste, Betty Lou, because it makes you conspicuous. Now put yourself into your mother's place. Would you care to have your daughter hugged and kissed by any boy she went out with, even if she did know him pretty well? Doesn't it make a girl seem a bit cheap to submit to such things? Will you expect the next boy you go with to do likewise? And how will you feel when HE comes along? If you love a chap and he loves you, even if later you fall out of love, of course there is some excuse, but do not indulge in promiscuous "petting." I beg of you.

The boy will probably ask for an introduction if he wants one. Anxious Rodney, by the way, do no harm to suggest to one of the boys that he bring him up and make you known to one another.

TOO MUCH!

The Spatts had been at it again. "And furthermore," said Mrs. Concluding her long tirade, "you certainly aren't much of a husband."

"Well, my dear," Mr. retorted, wearily, "I can truthfully say that you are a lot of wife."

Lemon Gelatin Salad. Dissolving one tablespoon vinegar in one pint of boiling water, solve one package of lemon gelatin for one tablespoon of water. When the gelatin is cooked add quite a large quantity of chopped walnuts, celery, apple, pimento—or any other combination that may be preferred. When set, serve with mayonnaise dressing.

Stuffed Steaks—One and a half pounds of steak, sliced thin, two ounces of salt pork, one egg, one teaspoon salt, three-fourths teaspoon celery salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, one-eighth teaspoon poultry seasoning (this may be omitted), one-half scraped onion, two tablespoons lemon juice, one cup bread crumbs, one and a half cups of boiling water. Wash the steak and cut into five or six pieces, cutting the fat from it, and making the pieces as nearly square as possible.

Use the remainder of the ingredients, except the water, for the stuffing. Put the salt pork through the food grinder. Beat the egg and add it to the pork. Then add the remainder of the ingredients.

Divide the dressing into as many parts of steak as there are pieces of steak. Put a portion of the stuffing on each piece of steak and roll. String may be used around the steak in order to keep it in place. Roll each piece of steak in flour, and brown them in a frying pan, with the fat cut from the steak, to which has been added a quantity of butter. After added a quantity of butter, add two tablespoons more of flour to the fat in the bottom of the frying pan so as to thicken the gravy when the steaks are done. Then sprinkle salt over the steaks and pour one and one-half cups of boiling water on them. Turn into a casserole or Dutch oven and bake for one and one-half hours. Serve with cream sauce over the top.

CENTRAL HIGH WINS FROM ST. BRIGID; RALLY THREATENS

Central High School barely succeeded in defeating St. Brigid High School by the closest possible margin of 5 to 4 in a National League softball game Wednesday night at Cox Memorial Athletic Field.

Central acquired a five-run advantage in the early innings. St. Brigid, after being held scoreless for seven rounds, came to life in the eighth and threatened with a four-run rally. St. Brigid again filled the bases in the ninth but could not score.

Both teams fielded brilliantly, a factor which kept the score down. St. Brigid bunched its hits better than usual and gave its best exhibition of the season.

Eddie Higgins pitched for the winners and had the opposition eating out of his hand most of the way, using nothing more than a slow ball. Phil Campbell hurled a good game for St. Brigid.

The Xenia Country Club hosts the Firemen Thursday night. Defeat for the former team would mean elimination from the race for the league championship.

St. Brigid lineup: Hibbert, c; Powers, 1b; Campbell, p; Combs, 2b; Ernst, ss; R. Shoup, 3b; Denovan, rf; Kennedy, lf; Killean, cf.

Central lineup: Full, c; Higgins, p; Clemans, 1b; Hurley, 2b; Dook, ss; Smittle, 3b; Bell, lf; Gibney, rf.

BOLD ROBBERS GET VALUABLE LINENS

KEENE, N. H., Aug. 16.—The countryside for miles around today was scoured for a trio of robbers who, at pistol point, held up S. E. Kalleh, wealthy Syracuse, N. Y. importer, as he was driving in his automobile in the town of Dublin and robbed him of $25,000 worth of imported linens.

FELT MISERABLE ALL OVER BEFORE TAKING KONJOLA

Local Man Says New Medicine Built Up His Rundown System.

Twenty-two different roots and herbs combined with other recognized medical ingredients, go into the making of this new Konjola medicine. Sufferers from every section of Xenia are praising this compound after it relieved them of disorders of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. Stubborn cases of rheumatism and neuritis have been ended. The Konjola Man is personally explaining the merits of this new medicine to vast crowds of people, and at the time, many well known men and women are strongly endorsing this remedy. For instance just a few days ago Mr. A. H. Caplinger, 564 Cincinnati Avenue, Xenia, made the following statement to the Konjola Man who is at the Gallagher Drug Store, this city:

"Before taking Konjola I suffered from various ailments for many years," said Caplinger, "and I really didn't think it was possible for one medicine to restore my health like Konjola did."

"My health was in a general rundown condition and no matter what I would do for it, I still seemed to be dragging through life, half sick all the time. My stomach was in a terrible shape. Every meal I ate caused intense suffering in the pit of my stomach. The gas which used to form would rise into my throat and mouth making it very unpleasant for me. I would sometimes be attacked with awful belching spells when bits of undigested food would come up making it hard to keep anything that I ate on my stomach. I was awfully constipated and poisons filled my system so that I felt tired and worn out all day long. At nights I couldn't rest well but would toss back and forth on the bed for hours before going to sleep. I was in this condition for almost a year, and was getting discouraged."

"I heard of Konjola through a friend and made up my mind to try this medicine. It's a blessing that I did for this medicine is just what I always needed. I have taken but three bottles of Konjola but it has made me feel better than I have in years. My appetite is wonderful now and I can sit down and eat whatever is placed before me, without thought of after effects. The gas never forms now and the belching spells that used to come over me are permanently ended. I never have to take any kind of laxative because Konjola cleansed my whole inner-system. In fact, I feel fine in every way and it is all due to my taking Konjola. I am glad to endorse your medicine because I know what it will do and think it should be used by everyone troubled as I was."

The Konjola Man is at the Gallagher Drug Store, Xenia, where he is daily meeting the public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy. Free samples given.

Personalities IN SPORT

LEON GOSLIN

Leon Allen "Goose" Goslin, Washington Senators' outfielder, was born at Salem, N. J., October 16, 1901.

The Goose started his pro baseball career with Columbia of the Sally league in 1920, but his terrific hitting got him a berth with the Senators the very next year.

Since that time the Goose has been slugging the apple for a .331 average. His fielding has fallen off quite a bit this season, but as he leads the American League hitters his job in the Senator garden seems cinched.

In the two world series in which he participated Goslin hit for an average of .326.

XENIA HAS AVENGED SNOW HILL DEFEAT

Retaliating for a defeat earlier in the season, the Xenia Country Club defeated the Snow Hill Country Club of Wilmington 39 to 17 in a return inter-city golf match over the local nine-hole course Wednesday afternoon.

It was the final match of this kind of the season for Xenia which broke even in four matches played. Xenia golfers both won and lost to Wilmington and Middletown in home-and-home matches this summer.

Jack Barlow, Xenia golfer, recorded the low score of the match, turning in a card of 75 for the eighteen holes. Shizes, Wilmington player, shot the low score for his team, negotiating the two rounds in 78.

Twenty-three players composed the visiting team.

Following the match, players of both teams enjoyed dinner, served at the clubhouse by women members of the local club.

FEW CONTESTS IN DEMOCRATIC COMMITTEE RACES TUESDAY

There were few contests to enliven the race for membership on the Democratic Greene County Central Committee at Tuesday's primary election. In a majority of instances, candidates were unopposed.

H. A. Higgins defeated Hugh Barnes for a committee place in Xenia city third ward; Lawrence Barber won from Gilbert McCoy in Cedarville village; the name of Frank Engle was written on the ballots a sufficient number of times to defeat R. C. Ritenour in Cedarville Twp., while Fred Davison and a man named Preston are believed to have tied in Miami Twp., each receiving one vote.

Following are believed to be names of successful Democratic committee candidates:

Bellbrook—O. W. Hook; Xenia third ward, Harry Donovan; Xenia second ward, George Smith; Cedarville village, Lawrence Barber; Beaver Creek Twp., James James; Spring Valley Twp., Harper Linkhart; Fairfield, O. A. Wilson; Silver Creek Twp., J. M. Dwyer; Jamestown, Mrs. Bessie L. Robinson; Bath Twp., Fred Shellabarger; Yellow Springs, John Alexander; Ross Twp., M. K. Ritenour; Spring Valley village, J. W. Fulkerson; New Jasper Twp., Riley Jones; Bowersville, W. W. Warnock; Caesar Creek Twp., Emery W. Oglesbee; Xenia Twp., Raymond Wolf; Cedarville Twp., Frank Engle.

The committee may hold its organization meeting next week.

THE PARABLE OF YOUR TOWN AND MINE

Small Town Poison And Its Antidote.

By B. A. ROSENCRANS

Now there was a certain city and in this city the people did work together and did gather many shekels and pieces of silver.

And it came to pass the citizens of that town did rise up and say: "Behold, we are a mighty city and must have ways paved with brick and concrete and gravel, for our oxen and horses and chariots of fire," which they called automobiles. "We must have new schools for our young. We must have storm sewers, so when the rain descendeth and the floods come, our houses will fall not and we will be sitting pretty. We must have great churches, baseball uniforms, drinking fountains and fire trucks; parks for the hand and kids to play in, tourists to tour in and carnivals to carnival in."

And it was so. And when these things did come to pass, lo, there was a mighty increase in the tax rate. And the merchants rejoiced and cared not for the citizens of that town were loyal and did shower them with business, blessings and much yen. And all that lived therein, did wax fat.

But it was not long so. "Alas," spake the baker, "many merchants and their wives and their neighbors will not eat my daily bread."

"More alas," spake the butcher who bartered in cow, horse, dog and fish meat, "neither will the five thousand eat my fishes—nor the ninety and nine feast upon my fatted calves."

And likewise did the dealer who dealt in silks and clothes and fine linens rise up on his hind legs and spat a large sized spit and said unto them: "I have fine wares of certain small pieces of silver and the people journey into other lands to buy, and so do your neighbors and maids and man servants and so does your old man."

And, likewise, did the hardware dealer get exceedingly hot under his celluloid collar and kick like a Bay State steer as he break these words unto them: "Ya, you give me the glad go-by and purchase thy new stove, flat irons and barbed wire fence and screw drivers over in the distant city of catalogues. And it is I who must pay your preacher and the teacher of thy young."

Dealer wept. And he swore a large sized swear.

Then the rich merchant who didst offer fine raiment for young men and old men who sought to appear young in the eyes of the femininity of the village, got himself up on his toes and smote his fists with great potency, saying: "Hark ye unto me, you have sinned against me, yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of bankruptcy, you answer not to my calling, but throw kopecks and shekels and yen with lavish hands for mail-order boots and shoes and radio suits and what have you?"

And in the same time it is I who must pay the fiddler in the band." And when the young of the city and the children of the tillers of the soil had got themselves much education from the taxes of the merchants they did hie themselves hence to other cities of that region and did come back with costly raiment and new shoes and hair tonic.

Now it came to pass, after the setting of the sun, the Chamber of Commerce, Ad Club, Rotary Club and its Anns, Elks and their Does, Masons and their Stars, Knights of Columbus and their daughters didst awaken. And they did join themselves unto the preachers and teachers and merchants and farmers and laborers, saying:

"Verily, verily I say unto you,

YOU TRADE WITH ME SO I CAN TRADE WITH HIM. THEN HE WILL TRADE WITH THEM SO THEY CAN TRADE WITH THEE."

And lo, and alas and alack, when the baker with the merchant did trade, and the merchant from the butcher did buy, and the butcher from the coal man and the coal man from the clothier, et cetera, it came to pass there was harmony among them and much glee.

And there was also much joy. And they blew upon the ram's horn and cornet and swinet and the French horn and flute and bass drum.

And henceforth they lived in the land of condensed milk and strained honey.

And it was so.

before daylight each morning the convention was in session, wagons made the rounds of hotels, collecting empty liquor bottles. From one of the large hotels the average was fifteen barrels of quart and pint bottles a day.

And the most joyous tippling was done on that midnight hour when the resolutions committee broke up after adopting the driest prohibition plank ever written into the platform, a plank pledging the Republican party to "observe" the law they were busy violating. Ob-servance, like charity, should begin at home.

Thus the hypocritical attitude of the Republican party is to be continued, getting votes from the dries because the party is dry in theory, and getting the votes from wets because the party is wet in practice.

But if it is hypocritical—disgracefully hypocritical—for the Republicans to pretend to advocate either observance or enforcement of the Volstead act, what is to be said of the Democratic party, whose present leader, Alfred E. Smith, is to become the Moses of the "wets," the man who will lead them—and also the "dries"—out of the cellars right to the bars and the railings? The south furnished the bigotry and fanaticism and the capitalists the sinews of war which made the prohibition movement and its leaders go around.

It is this delegation from the solid south in our congress that has not only resisted every attempt to re-examine the mistakes that was made when bone dry prohibition was attempted, but it has even been willing to cast aside, without the slightest compunction, every constitutional right found in our constitution in order to enforce the unenforceable Volstead act. Using the entire army and navy, but one of the minor demands of this crowd.

And now the Democratic party outdistances the Republicans in double dealing and hypocrisy. It adopts a platform plank on prohibition which is even stronger than the one Bryan inserted in the Democratic platform four years ago.

DRY PLANKS OF POLITICAL PARTIES ASSAILED

By VICTOR L. BERGER

(Victor Berger was born in Austria-Hungary in 1860. He came to the United States with his family in 1878 and became a resident of Milwaukee, Wis. For several years Berger was connected with various newspapers and soon became an active organizer of Socialists. He was a delegate of the People's party convention at St. Louis in 1896, and tried to organize sentiment for Eugene Debs at the convention. He became a member of the 62nd congress from Wisconsin (first Socialist ever elected to congress). Berger was again elected to congress in 1918, but was excluded during the war. In 1919 he was re-elected once more, but was refused admission. Once more he was elected by a great majority and finally reelected as a member of congress in 1922. Re-election followed in 1924 and 1926. He is national chairman of the Socialist party.)

The Republican party, in spite of its platform pledge of strict law enforcement, has no intention of enforcing prohibition, and the results will be a continuation of the present ills which defeat true temperance.

Democratic politicians who intimate that a modification of the law will be possible with the election of Smith are deliberately misleading the voters. A victory for the Democratic party this year may mean the destruction of all constitutional and civil liberties in a vain effort to enforce the law.

I am more convinced than ever that bone dry prohibition is not desirable, even if it were possible, and not possible if it were desirable.

The Kansas City convention furnished the most glaring instance of the unmitigated hypocrisy of the leaders when those who adopted this solemn declaration to observe the prohibition laws were consuming more liquors during the convention than was being consumed anywhere else in the United States.

CHAUTAUQUA OPENING PLEASES AUDIENCES; PLAY THURSDAY

The Shumate Bros. Quartet opened Chautauqua Wednesday afternoon before a large and appreciative audience. They gave the prelude Wednesday night, followed by William Rainey Bennett, who entertained and held his large audience with his lecture, "The Man Who Can". Many favorable comments were heard about the excellent program of chautauqua's opening day.

J. Smith Damron, the potter craftsman, entertained his audience this afternoon with his lecture demonstration, "The Potter and the Clay." Not only did he make many beautiful pieces of pottery on the stage, but his homely philosophy woven into it, rounded out a pleasing program.

"Sun-Up," the play pronounced by critics as the outstanding play of last season, and the play that was presented in New York, London, and Chicago to large audiences, comes to chautauqua Thursday night. The cast is composed of Equity actors of New York, headed by Marie Pavay, who has been in starring productions on Broadway for years.

"Sun-Up" is the character study of the mountain whites of North Carolina at the time of the World War. The Widow Cagle is played by Marie Pavay, and other characters include, Rufe, Emmy, the preacher, the stranger and Pap Todd.

The crowd that attended Wednesday night assures the committee of a successful chautauqua this year. The season ticket sale will continue until Wednesday and those who have not bought season tickets can still purchase them of the committee at the chautauqua grounds.

With 404 out of 407 precincts reported, Charles C. Brand, Urbana, incumbent, holds a lead of approximately 13,000 votes over Attorney Frank L. Johnson, Xenia, for the Republican nomination for congressman in the Seventh District.

Congressman Brand was victorious in every county in the district, including Greene, Johnson's home county, where complete official returns revealed the incumbent received 3,018 votes against 1,640 for the Xenia attorney.

Congressman Brand will be opposed at the November election by Harry E. Rice, Xenia publisher, who was unopposed for the Democratic nomination.

FINAL UNOFFICIAL GIVES CINCINNATI MAN 5,568 MAJORITY

The Republicans have placed upon me, plans will be formulated at once for an aggressive educational campaign.

The strength of the Republican national ticket and the outstanding character of the other candidates on the (Republican) state ticket assure Republican victory in Ohio in November," said Cooper.

Other unsuccessful candidates for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, on the basis of complete unofficial returns, were credited with having received the following votes: Attorney General Edward C. Turner, Columbus, 99,236; Fred Kohler, Cleveland, 25,115; Harry C. Smith, Cleveland, 16,181; Harry A. Shanley, Forest, 6,840.

For the G. O. P. nomination for lieutenant governor, full term, complete returns gave Brown 113,164 votes and Braden 112,569, it was said.

The following state tickets will be presented to Ohio voters at the election next November, according to unofficial returns available early today:

Republican:

For governor: Myers Y. Cooper, Cincinnati.

For lieutenant governor (full term): John T. Brown, Mechanicsburg.

Cooper led on early returns primary night. As the returns increased, Beggs continued to gain and took the lead yesterday morning. Belated returns during the day, however, consistently reduced Beggs' plurality. Late yesterday unofficial returns placed Cooper in the lead.

Cooper was the Republican nominee for governor two years ago but was defeated at the November election that year by Governor Vic Donahey. The result was close.

All of the apparent nominees on the Republican state ticket were endorsed by the Ohio Anti-Saloon League with the exception of Gilbert Bettman, Cincinnati, for attorney general. Of the Democratic candidates endorsed by the League, only one was successful.

The small dry rural counties throughout Ohio will receive the credit if the complete official tabulation, to be made in a day or two at the secretary of state's office here, shows that Cooper has been nominated.

It was the belated returns from these communities that took the lead away from Beggs and placed Cooper in the forefront. Beggs carried the large cities with the exception of Columbus, which supported Turner, and Cincinnati and Dayton, which favored Cooper.

Due to the activities of members of the Ohio Anti-Saloon League, who were disappointed with the failure of the League to officially endorse Beggs' candidacy, Beggs received a heavy dry vote in numerous rural counties.

The Republican and Democratic nominees for places on the Ohio Supreme Court bench were chosen without opposition. In the Republican primary, Senator Fess, State Treasurer Buckley and Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown had no opposition. In the Democratic primary, Attorney Francis Poulson, Cleveland Heights, nominee for attorney general was without opposition.

Of the defeated candidates, those endorsed by the Anti-Saloon League include:

John W. Bricker, Columbus, and Clinton D. Boyd, Middletown, candidates for the Republican nomination for attorney general; Commerce Director Earl D. Bloom, Bowling Green, for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination; Lieut. Gov. William G. Pickrel, Dayton, Democrat, for lieutenant governor; U. S. Senator Cyrus Locher, Cleveland, George White, Marietta, and Charles E. Wharton, Kenton, for Democratic nominations for U. S. senator; John Henry Newman, Fletcher, Democrat, for secretary of state, and Attorney Charles E. Hubbell, Cleveland, Democrat, for state auditor.

For lieutenant governor (short term): George Braden, Warren.

For United States senator (full term): U. S. Senator Simeon D. Fess, Yellow Springs.

For attorney general: Gilbert Bettman, Cincinnati.

For Ohio Supreme Court judges: Dennis F. Dunlavy, Ashtabula, and Frank S. Monnett, Columbus.

The contest between Beggs and Cooper for the Republican gubernatorial nomination constituted one of the closest primary election races in the history of Ohio politics.

Cooper led on early returns primary night. As the returns increased, Beggs continued to gain and took the lead yesterday morning. Belated returns during the day, however, consistently reduced Beggs' plurality. Late yesterday unofficial returns placed Cooper in the lead.

Cooper was the Republican nominee for governor two years ago but was defeated at the November election that year by Governor Vic Donahey. The result was close.

All of the apparent nominees on the Republican state ticket were endorsed by the Ohio Anti-Saloon League with the exception of Gilbert Bettman, Cincinnati, for attorney general. Of the Democratic candidates endorsed by the League, only one was successful.

The small dry rural counties throughout Ohio will receive the credit if the complete official tabulation, to be made in a day or two at the secretary of state's office here, shows that Cooper has been nominated.

It was the belated returns from these communities that took the lead away from Beggs and placed Cooper in the forefront. Beggs carried the large cities with the exception of Columbus, which supported Turner, and Cincinnati and Dayton, which favored Cooper.

Due to the activities of members of the Ohio Anti-Saloon League, who were disappointed with the failure of the League to officially endorse Beggs' candidacy, Beggs received a heavy dry vote in numerous rural counties.

The Republican and Democratic nominees for places on the Ohio Supreme Court bench were chosen without opposition. In the Republican primary, Senator Fess, State Treasurer Buckley and Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown had no opposition. In the Democratic primary, Attorney Francis Poulson, Cleveland Heights, nominee for attorney general was without opposition.

Of the defeated candidates, those endorsed by the Anti-Saloon League include:

John W. Bricker, Columbus, and Clinton D. Boyd, Middletown, candidates for the Republican nomination for attorney general; Commerce Director Earl D. Bloom, Bowling Green, for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination; Lieut. Gov. William G. Pickrel, Dayton, Democrat, for lieutenant governor; U. S. Senator Cyrus Locher, Cleveland, George White, Marietta, and Charles E. Wharton, Kenton, for Democratic nominations for U. S. senator; John Henry Newman, Fletcher, Democrat, for secretary of state, and Attorney Charles E. Hubbell, Cleveland, Democrat, for state auditor.

SONGS of a HOUSEWIFE

By Marjorie K. Rawlins

ONE STEP MORE
If I can take just one step more—I can go on.
Daylight will come; it came before, A lovely dawn.

If through one window I can stare, Then I can see
The world, as always, passing there, A part of me.

If just one thing in life seems sweet—A child, a flower—
I need not be afraid to meet Tomorrow's hour.

Life's pageant I shall not forsake! Hope holds the door
Wide open, if I still can take Just one step more.

MAKE-UP

READ THIS FIRST:
Janet Mary James, eighteen, has an ambition to go on the stage because her mother, who died the night she was born, had been a famous opera star. In New York Janet meets Ballard Riley, young successful physician, who is known as a woman hater. Ballard dates her up, and at first Janet gets a lot of fun teasing Ballard about his ideas. Later she knows she loves him and she is not so sure of him. Ballard keeps her guessing. Janet is given a small dancing part in Mort Goldstein's latest musical revue. Mort thinks she will make a star. In New York Janet meets Flavia Marlowe, rich and fashionable, who is just beginning to show her age and trying to hide it. Janet detests "Putty" Bigelow, boy friend of Flavia's, but he is determined to cause trouble between Janet and Flavia by acting as though he is in love with Janet. Sir Henry Martindale, one of the Villagers, has taken a fatherly interest in Janet. He has interested Mort Goldstein in her acting. Janet has gone to a New Year's eve party, given by Flavia, and "Putty" Bigelow has shown her much attention.

Putty makes a scene, and Flavia, shaken with jealous rage because she thinks Janet is making love to Putty, falls unconscious and later dies.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXVI
Three weeks after Flavia's death, on a Sunday evening, Ballard and Janet were driving in the upper part of town. They were passing a small church when she suddenly grabbed his arm and pointed, speechless.

On a large banner floating in front of the church was a sign that took her breath:

HEAR DANIEL WEBSTER JAMES "THE MOUNTAINEER" EVANGELIST

TODAY
"BRIMSTONE" JAMES, AND HIS OLD-TIME GOSPEL

With Mrs. James at the Piano, leading the singing.

The sign was rather crudely painted, and screamed in coloring. Janet didn't know whether to laugh or cry. Ballard looked at her, puzzled, then broke into a grin.

"Not your honorable sire, my dear?"

"Yes," she was somewhat embarrassed. "I guess it must be. There surely isn't another Daniel Webster James in the world."

"Let's go in and hear what he has to say," Ballard suggested, amused. "Maybe we'll get in on a good show. Who knows?"

Janet was afraid he might see her—but Ballard laughed away her fears.

"Don't worry. He won't expect to find you here, Princess. I don't like to miss hearing your father's oratory. If he is as brilliant as the sign, he will be worth while."

Somewhat certain, Janet followed Ballard in, and they took a seat way back near the door. "In case of too much fire," Ballard said.

The hall was pretty well crowded and the singing had just begun. Sure enough, there was her father, blonde as ever, and not a day older than she remembered him when last she had seen him ten years before.

A little ache came into Janet's heart. He was so handsome and she could be so proud of him if he only had given her a chance. Should she speak to him after the meeting? Oh, no, of course that would not be the thing to do. He might not approve of her being in New York. She remembered that there were a great many things her father did not approve of. In fact, it was pretty hard to find anything outside of his work that he did think quite right.

And Mrs. James? There she sat at the piano, weighing about two hundred pounds, and with a voice to match, leading the singing. Janet turned to Ballard and whispered:

"What do you think of him?"

"I think," Ballard replied, seriously, "that he looks as though he had a great many brains if he gave them a chance. He certainly is no ordinary-looking chap."

"And Mrs. James?" she nodded in the direction of the piano.

"She goes in for quantity, rather than quality, from all appearances. She looks hard as nails."

"I presume she is," Janet watched her closely.

Daniel James hopped around from place to place on the platform. Janet feared that any moment he might hop back to where they were sitting and recognize her. Between songs he cracked jokes and laughed at the audience for not singing louder. Mrs. James looked on, smiling so helpfully.

Evangelist James stood up and looked at the audience for nearly a half minute, then suddenly leaped out from the pulpit box and pointed a warning finger dramatically.

"Now, we're in for it. He is going to let loose," Ballard grinned like a boy. He seemed to be enjoying himself immensely. Janet was not quite so comfortable.

Again Daniel Webster James leaped to the other side of the platform, and his voice rang out, clear like and severe.

"Friends, tonight I am going to talk to you about 'The Stage—the Road to Perdition!'"

Janet gulped. Ballard looked down at her in surprise, and his eyes twinkled. Then he saw that she looked frightened and that she was not taking it as he. How selfish of him to forget that this man was her father. Perhaps he had gone too far.

"Do you want to stay, or not?" He leaned down. "Perhaps we had better not stay."

But Janet was not a quitter. She smiled half way.

"Oh, I can stand it if you can."

He moved his hand over so that it touched her arm, and she was grateful to him for the understanding.

It was not five minutes before they both realized how he had come by the nickname of "Brimstone."

For the hot words he heaped upon everything theatrical was enough to burn the place down. Janet did not move, neither did Ballard—except to glance at Janet from the corner of his eye occasionally, and grin despite himself.

He had, perhaps, been talking ten minutes when suddenly he whisked a Sunday paper from his pocket and held it up. Silently, and with eyes full of fire, he held it out to the audience and pointed to a girl in a theatrical costume. Janet leaned forward and gasped. Her picture! It was her picture that had appeared in a tabloid the Sunday before, taking up nearly a whole page. The picture was a work of art—revealing in every line.

Janet grasped Ballard's arm hysterically, and waited. What was he going to say? Plainly underneath was written:

"The Naughty, Naughty Baby of 'The Force of 1928,' Janet Mary James, Who Came Over From La Belle, France, Last Fall to Conquer Our Broadway. And how!"

Ballard would have given anything to have saved Janet the suffering he knew she must be going through. He knew how sensitive she was, and he could tell from the dramatic way in which the evangelist held the picture up that she was due for a tirade.

Suddenly he yelled and leaped down from the platform.

"Men and women, get a good look at this—this—Jezabel!"

Paris! Huh! She has never seen Paris. It breaks my heart to tell you. But, that girl is my daughter."

Janet slumped, and Ballard shook her slightly.

Here, sit up! What do you care?"

The audience was a-buzz with attention. Janet burned. What if someone should recognize her. She would die with humiliation. She pulled her little red hat farther down over her face, and tried to look natural. Her father kept on, measuring every word.

"I tell you this only to prove to you the evil of bad companions, and how important it is that you see that your daughter and your son are brought up in the right atmosphere among the right kind of people."

Then he seemed to feel explanations were in order, and his voice tone down. Softly, and almost tearfully, he told of how his wife had died when his little one was born, and how she had been brought up by strangers because he felt the service needed him. He told them that he thought he had left her in good hands. There were tears in his eyes when he ended.

He told the story well. Women wiped their eyes, and men blew their noses. Had Janet known what was to come next, she would have leaped up and hurled herself at him. He looked at his wife, sitting on the piano bench still, and shook his head.

"My good wife understands what I have been through. My first venture in matrimony was not quite so fortunate. I made a great mistake. I feel I must bare my own past to again show to you the importance of good influence—and especially for the young men who are contemplating matrimony."

"My first wife was a theatrical person. I married her after I was certain she had embraced the faith. But she was not happy in the mountains with me. She wanted to get away, back to her old life. I believe, my friends, that it is that influence that has helped to ruin the life of my daughter and make of her a notorious Broadway sinner."

Janet wanted to hit him. She was stunned that he would say such things. That he would use her mother's name in such a manner.

Ballard held her arm and tried to quiet her, fearing she would lose control of her feelings and leap from her seat.

Daniel Webster James ended, damp with perspiration, and with a wave of his hands that seemed to say:

"You see how little I care about my own feelings! I told you folks this for your own good."

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Dick Barthelmess' latest, "Out of the Ruins," is having its first showings on Broadway. It's another story of a French poilu, written by Sir Philip Gibbs, the war correspondent, novelist and historian. Marion Nixon appears opposite Dick in the picture, released by First National.

Another collegian has "made the grade" in the cinema world—that is, if a five-year contract be considered as the standard of success. He is John Boles, son of a Texas banker and a graduate of the University of Texas. John came under the eye of Gloria Swanson and promptly played opposite her in "The Love of Sunya," his first role. His success was immediate. He's now under contract with Carl Laemmle to play in Universal pictures.

that he has put over his first film story, Henle, who has also been a press agent, has done about everything there is to do in the movies but act.

The big $2 top film road show business must not be so good these days. At this writing but one road show is listed for Broadway showing in the near future. That's "Hell's Angels." Eric von Stroheim's "The Wedding March" and the big Zeppelin film, "Dirigible," both expected to be road shows, are now reported going in as regular feature pictures.

Sue Carol, rising young movie star, who is becoming popular through her distinct personality. First appearing as a leading woman in a comedy, Sue, an heiress to a Chicago fortune, has quickly risen to stardom.

Mr. Lester John, of Nesbitt and Weaver's, left for Cedar Point as the delegate from the local lodge of Elks to the state convention.

NO SUITABLE LANDING FIELD FOR FLYING PARADE FOUND HERE

Details for the "aerial parade" staged by a fleet of airplanes from Wright Field, scheduled as a feature of the Greene County Home-Coming, were completed Tuesday, according to Dr. A. C. Messenger, chairman of the program committee.

Major Jacob Fickel, commanding officer at the airport, accompanied by Captain St. Clair Street, came to Xenia Tuesday afternoon for the purpose of inspecting various sites in the hope of finding suitable landing space for the planes.

The officers were accompanied on the inspection trip by a Xenia committee composed of Dr. Messenger, Mayor John W. Prugh, City Manager S. O. Hale, P. H. Flynn and Dr. B. R. McClellan. Several prospective sites were inspected but a field sufficiently large for the planes to land could not be found. The planes, therefore, will not land, but will return to Wright Field and later the aviators participating in the air exhibition will come to Xenia in automobiles to attend the celebration.

Major Fickel advised local Home-Coming officials that the "aerial parade" will be presented on both Tuesday and Wednesday, the third and fourth days of the Home-Coming. The exhibitions will last one hour, from 4:30 to 5:30 p. m. each day.

Twelve planes will participate in the exhibition, including a bomber, a Ford transport piloted by Captain Edwards, who will perform stunt flying; one announcer, three pursuit planes and six observation planes. It is also planned to obtain daylight fireworks, which will be displayed from the air.
